Note.—Columns 9 and 10 include the paid-up capital of new Companies registered during the half-year.
(a) Revised. (b) Registered under the Mysore Regulation, III of 1895.

This statement is compiled from returns furnished half-yearly by Registrars of Joint Stock Companies. From a comparison of columns 2 and 3 with columns 15 and 16, it will be seen that at the end of December, 1916, the total paid-up share capital of companies registered under the Indian Companies Act (VII of 1913) in British India amounted to nearly Rs. 87 crores and the debenture capital of such companies Rs. 13 crores, showing a net increase of Rs. 3 crores in paid-up share capital, and of nearly Rs. 35 lakhs in debenture capital, as compared with the preceding half-year ending June, 1916. In the paid-up share capital Bengal shows a net increase of Rs. 2,00,84,000 and the Punjab of Rs. 64,94,000. In the debenture capital the Punjab shows a net increase of Rs. 19,68,000 and Bengal of Rs. 12,40,000, while Madras shows a net decrease of Rs. 5,10,000.

The following statement compares the total paid-up share and debenture capital in British India at the end of the half-year of report with the preceding half-year, the corresponding half-year of the previous year, and the pre-war half-year ending June 1914 :—

	Share capital Rs.	Debenture capital Rs.
Half-year ending June 1914	75,30,83,000	9,61,56,000
" " December 1915	80,46,19,000	11,00,04,000
" " June 1916	83,53,71,000	12,61,25,000
" " December 1916	86,56,89,000	12,95,99,000

It will be seen that since the outbreak of war there has been a steady increase both in the paid-up share capital and in the debenture capital of companies registered under the Indian Companies Act (VII of 1913).

DEPARTMENT OF STATISTICS, INDIA

CALCUTTA, APRIL 30, 1917.

Supplementary Memorandum on the SESAMUM (til or jinjili) crop of 1916-17.

This memorandum deals with the final estimates for the crop received from Madras and Hyderabad, and supplements the Final Memorandum issued on the 17th January last.

Madras (16·3 per cent of the total area under sesamum in British India).—The total area is now estimated at 794,000 acres, which is 3·5 per cent below the area of last year. The total estimated yield is put at 87,000 tons as against 70,000 tons last year, or an increase of 24 per cent. In the Circars and the Carnatic the yield has not been good, but improved estimates have been received from the Deccan and Central districts.

Hyderabad reports the area sown to be 569,000 acres, which is 4 per cent above the area of last year. The yield is estimated at 31,000 tons, as compared with 22,000 tons last year, or an increase of 41 per cent.

Consequent on the revised figures noted above, the estimates in the table appended to the final forecast, issued in January last, require modifications, and the general results for all the provinces from which reports have been received are as follows :—

	Acres	Tons
1916-17	5,015,000	493,000
1915-16	5,108,000	482,000

DEPARTMENT OF STATISTICS, INDIA

CALCUTTA, MAY 10, 1917.

SUPPLEMENTARY MEMORANDUM ON THE WHEAT CROP FOR THE FORTNIGHT ENDING 5TH MAY, 1917.

This is the fourth of the fortnightly reports on the condition of the Indian wheat crop. Since the publication of the last Supplementary Memorandum on April 24, revised estimates of area have been received from the Punjab, the Central Provinces and Berar, Bihar and Orissa, and the North-West Frontier Province ; and the total revised area for all-India now stands at 32,773,000 acres, as against 32,955,000 acres, reported in the last Supplementary Memorandum.

The condition of the crop generally continues good, except in the unirrigated areas of the Punjab and Delhi. Slight damage by rain has been reported from parts of the Punjab, from the western districts of the United Provinces, and by hailstorms from parts of the North-West Frontier Province. The rainfall in the Punjab has not affected the quantity of the crop but only the quality, if at all. The unsettled weather in the Punjab has somewhat delayed harvesting. The crop in the United Provinces is good and outturn on the whole is thought to be above normal. In Sind rust and insufficient irrigation have affected outturn in parts.

Harvesting has been completed in the United Provinces, Bombay, Bengal, and Ajmer-Merwara, and is nearing completion in the Central Provinces, Bihar and Orissa, Delhi, the Punjab, and Sind. It has not yet commenced in the hilly tracts of the North-West Frontier Province. Threshing has commenced in the Punjab, Delhi, and Sind, and is continuing in the United Provinces and Bihar and Orissa. It is in full swing in the Central Provinces, Bombay, Bengal, and Ajmer-Merwara.

The provincial reports are summarised below :—

Punjab.—The total area is now estimated at 10,799,000 acres (1,269,000 acres being in the Native States) as against 11,050,000 acres reported in the Special Forecast. Rain, accompanied at places by hail, at the beginning of the fortnight, and subsequent light showers caused some damage to wheat already reaped, and retarded harvesting operations. Reaping is almost finished, except in the northern Punjab, and threshing has commenced except in the south-east, where it is approaching completion. The outturn is reported to be normal or somewhat below normal on irrigated areas, and below normal or poor on unirrigated areas.

United Provinces.—No change has been reported in the estimate of area or of outturn given in the Special Forecast. Harvesting is now finished. Threshing and winnowing are, however, being delayed by east winds and rain. Reports have been received from the western districts to the effect that grain on threshing floors is being spoilt by rain. Reports as to outturn continue to be generally satisfactory. As a result of weighments made in his Circle, the Deputy Director of Agriculture, Central Circle, reports the outturn in Bundelkhand to be above normal and that in the lower and middle Doab to be fully normal.

Central Provinces and Berar.—The total area is now estimated at 3,974,000 acres (130,000 acres being in the States of Khairagarh and Nandgaon), as against 3,931,000 acres, reported in the Supplementary Memorandum for the previous fortnight. The weather was cloudy with some rain, but no damage has been reported by rain or otherwise. Harvesting is almost completed throughout the province, and threshing and winnowing are in full swing. The yield is reported to be satisfactory.

Bombay and Sind.—No change has been reported in the estimate of area or outturn in the Presidency, where threshing is in full swing. In Sind rust and insufficient irrigation affected outturn in parts. In the south harvesting is well advanced, and threshing is in progress.

Bihar and Orissa.—The total area is now estimated at 1,308,000 acres as against 1,296,000 acres reported in the Special Forecast. Slight damage by recent rain to wheat on threshing floors is apprehended in two districts. Harvesting is almost completed and threshing continues. The yield is reported to be satisfactory.

INDIAN DEFENCE FORCE.

RESOLUTION.

No. 777.—The Government of India have noted with concern the disappointing response which has been made to the opportunity afforded to the people of India of enrolling themselves for service in the Indian Defence Force; and since they have also observed, in the press and elsewhere, that the conditions of that service have been a good deal criticised, they deem it advisable to recapitulate briefly the circumstances in which the scheme was initiated, and to explain the necessity of the conditions which at present apply to it.

Owing to the prolongation of the war, and the enforcement of universal military service in England, it was thought desirable to impose some obligation of a similar nature upon every European British subject of military age in India. Under these circumstances, though there was no necessity for a corresponding measure applicable to Indian subjects of His Majesty, the Governor-General in Council was anxious that the opportunity should be afforded to Indians also to enrol themselves in the Indian Defence Force. He was aware that there had for long been a desire that volunteering should be thrown open to Indian as well as to European British subjects, and was assured that, if that opportunity could be afforded to them, a ready and enthusiastic response would be made. Since, with the passing of the Indian Defence Force Act, volunteering on the old basis practically ceased to exist, it was proposed to provide other means by which Indians could come forward and offer their services for the defence of India as a part of the general military organisation of the country, and this proposal was accepted by the Indian Legislative Council and embodied in the Act.

It should be obvious that, during the progress of the greatest war in history, it was not possible to reorganise or modify radically the general conditions governing the military service of the country, and that any endeavour to do so might only result in deferring the day of final victory to which India, in common with the rest of His Majesty's Dominions, is so earnestly looking forward. It has therefore been a source of keen disappointment to the Governor-General in Council to observe, from utterances on the public platform and in the press, that the conditions of service in the Defence Force, which are the same as those applying to His Majesty's Indian forces in the regular army, have been represented as being such as to deter volunteers from coming forward for the defence of their country.

The leaders of Indian opinion are doubtless aware that the pay of the Territorial force in England was the same as that of the regular army, and that men of position and means in the United Kingdom, and even in distant parts of the Empire, did not think it derogatory to join the ranks both of the Territorials and of the new army and to serve as private soldiers shoulder to shoulder with those of other classes; and many of them have given their lives in such service in France and elsewhere during the present war. They asked no questions as to pay or other conditions; they put forward no pretensions or demands; their one ambition was to serve their country in her hour of need, and their memories will ever be honoured by the nations in whose defence they fought.

The Governor-General in Council was assured that a similar ambition prevailed in India, and that it was only necessary to throw open the ranks of the Defence Force to Indians to secure a hearty response. At a time when military organisations are strained to the uttermost, it was not possible to provide for the training of an indefinite number of small units all over the country on such a scale as to place a newly-constituted force of this character upon an efficient basis. Endeavour was, however, made to afford such facilities as were possible to those who were anxious to enrol themselves in the service of their country, and arrangements were made in the first instance for recruiting six battalions of a thousand men each at convenient centres. It was fully anticipated that further expansion might be required as the movement developed, but it was thought that a reasonable commencement might be made on these lines, and the military authorities were satisfied that this was all that they could undertake at the outset. It is, therefore, a matter of disappointment to the Government of India to find that, during the first two months after the passing of the Act, only 300 men have been enrolled in place of the 6,000 for which preparations were made. It is felt that all who take an interest in the Defence Force, and believe in those sentiments of patriotism which have brought it into being, and who have the good name of India at heart, will be disheartened to learn that out of the six months for which recruiting is open so much time should have elapsed without any adequate response being made.

The Government of India recognise that the conditions of service in the Defence Force may be open to criticism in some respects; but, as has already been stated, it was impossible to recast the existing organisation during the continued pressure of a great emergency, and all that could be attempted was to engraft the new force on to the great Indian army which was already in being.

There are doubtless particular conditions of service in the Indian army which may be thought to be unsuitable to men who enrol themselves in the new force, and the Government of India have no hesitation in declaring that considerations of this sort will always be taken into account, and that, so far as is consistent with the maintenance of the necessary standard of discipline, sympathetic treatment will be accorded to all those who come forward voluntarily to serve their country.

The Government of India are also aware of Indian aspirations with reference to commissioned rank. It is, however, perfectly well known that this matter is separately under consideration, and is engaging the earnest and sympathetic attention of Government. The whole frame-work of the Indian army is affected by that discussion, and it must be obvious to every thinking man that the enrolment of a purely temporary force constituted on a voluntary basis owing to the emergencies of a great war could not justify the hurried determination of so important and difficult a question, in respect of which the Government of India are not the ultimate arbiters.

In conclusion, the Government of India deem it expedient to draw attention once more to the words of His Excellency the Viceroy in the speech which brought to a close the last meeting of the Indian Legislative Council—

"The Act is confessedly a war measure and therefore temporary, but it will prove a most invaluable experiment. We shall have—it is no secret, for he who runs may read—to re-organise our Indian army after this war, and some form of second line force will probably be required. In the Indian Defence Force, raised temporarily under stress of war, there may lie the germ of such new second line. Do not ask us at such a moment as this to give answers to problems which will have to be solved at a time when there is more leisure. When that time arrives, then criticise, as you will, the Government in respect of its policy. But for the moment I would assure you that all the subjects of your criticism, are engaging our most sympathetic consideration, and I would ask your co-operation in making this present scheme a success, but do not let it be marred on the ground that it does not contain all that you would desire."

These words were accepted in the spirit in which they were offered by the non-official Members of the Council, and constitute a sufficient pledge of the earnest consideration by Government of the future needs of India. It is not claimed that the present scheme is perfect; it is admittedly in the nature of a make-shift; but it is the best that could be devised in the conditions obtaining at the moment, and it has great possibilities. That such a scheme, conceived in the general interests of Imperial defence, should, in spite of its modest dimensions, prove a hopeless failure at such a time and in a country which, whatever its deficiencies, is not lacking in man power, can hardly fail to create an impression throughout the Empire prejudicial to the good name of India. It is, therefore, the sincere hope of the Governor-General in Council that the leaders of public opinion in this country will realise their full responsibilities in this matter, and take all possible steps forthwith to make the recruitment of these Indian units worthy of the name and aspirations of India.

ORDER.—Ordered that this Resolution be published under a notification in Part I of the Gazette of India. Ordered also that it should be communicated to all Local Governments and Administrations.

The price of common rice has fallen slightly.

Bengal.—The rainfall during the week was general throughout the Province, being fairly heavy in some places. It has been beneficial to autumn paddy and jute and has facilitated ploughing of fields for winter rice. Weeding of autumn paddy and jute is proceeding in Eastern Bengal but in Western Bengal sowings are still going on. Harvesting of summer rice and of other spring crops is practically over. Cattle disease is reported from eight districts. The average price of common rice for the Province had a slight tendency to fall as compared with that of the previous week.

Monthly Weather Review for March to August 1916. Re. 1 per month.

The Work of the Forest Department in India.

Edited by R. S. TROUP, Esq., Assistant Inspector General of Forests.

Price Four Annas.

It may safely be said that there is hardly any Government Department in India whose work and aims are so little realized by the general public as are those of the Forest Department. For one thing the work of the forest officer lies for the most part in remote places, so that few have any knowledge of it. For another the practical results of forest work are apparent only after long periods of time, so that the forest officer has to cultivate the habit of thinking in half centuries and to be content that the full effect of his labours shall be visible only to future generations.

This publication is issued with the object of bringing together in popular form the main facts connected with the work of the Forest Department in India and of sketching the outlook for future expansion, particular attention being paid to the possibility of the local development of industries which depend to a greater or less extent on a plentiful supply of forest products. Information on these subjects is to be found scattered throughout the annual reports on forest administration which are issued by Provincial Governments and in the various publications of the Forest Research Institute, Dehra Dun, but these are not readily available to the general public, and so it is hoped that this memorandum, which has been prepared by Mr. R. S. Troup, Assistant Inspector General of Forests, with the assistance of selected officers of the Forest Department, may prove useful to those interested in the subject.

TARIFF VALUATION OF SUGAR.

The following statement shows in respect of each of the descriptions of sugar distinguished in the Tariff Schedule II (excepting molasses and all other kinds of sugar), first, the total imports into India in the month of April 1917, and the average value per cwt. as calculated on the returns received from the Customs Houses; and, secondly, a running total showing the total imports into India since the beginning of the year (1st October to 30th September) and the average net value per cwt. so far established. It is published in conformity with the procedure laid down in Customs Circular No. V of 1911, in order to enable merchants to compute the probable rate of duty for the year 1918 :—

DEPARTMENT OF STATISTICS, INDIA.

TRADE FLUCTUATIONS IN SELECTED ARTICLES IN MARCH, 1917.

The object of the tables below is to show the quantities of the principal staples of agricultural produce imported from the various provinces, etc., and from foreign countries into the ports of Calcutta, Bombay, Karachi, and into the Madras ports during the month of March, 1917, and for the twelve months, April 1916 to March 1917, as compared with the corresponding periods of the year 1915-16. The statistics include foreign sea-borne and coasting trade as well as inland (rail and river-borne) trade. They have been furnished by Collectors of Customs, Steamer Companies, Railway Audit Officers, the Commissioners for the Port of Calcutta, etc.

TRADE FLUCTUATIONS IN MARCH 1916 AND 1917.

It will be seen from Table I, that the imports by rail, river, and sea in March 1917, as against the corresponding month of 1916 show (in round numbers) a decrease of—

52 per cent in rape and mustard seed.
(12,000 tons as against 25,300 tons last year.)

36 per cent in rice (including paddy).
(109,500 tons as against 170,500 tons last year.)

31 per cent in jute.
(253,700 bales as against 370,100 bales last year.)

14 per cent in raw cotton.
(438,800 bales as against 508,200 bales last year.)

8 per cent in linseed

The imports of tea by rail, river, and sea into Calcutta show an increase of 774 per cent (16,150,500 lbs. as against 1,847,700 lbs. last year) due mainly to larger exports from Assam and Bengal. The increase of 131 per cent (102,200 tons as against 44,100 tons last year) in the imports of wheat (excluding wheat flour) into ports is accounted for by larger exports mainly from the Punjab, the United Provinces, and the Central Provinces and Berar. The imports of gram and pulse show an increase of 57 per cent (60,200 tons as against 38,300 tons last year), owing mainly to larger exports from the Punjab and Rajputana and Central India.

It will be seen from Table IV (wheat, excluding wheat flour) that the principal source of the imports in March 1916 was the Punjab. During the corresponding month of 1917, the provinces from which the ports received their supplies were mainly the Punjab (41 per cent of the total), the United Provinces (23 per cent), and the Central Provinces and Berar (18 per cent). Table XI shows the exports out of India of wheat (including wheat flour) month by month during the last six years.

NOTE.—One bale of cotton or jute is equivalent to 400 lbs.
One maund is equivalent to 82⅕ lbs.
One maund of paddy is taken as equivalent to 25 seers of rice

GENERAL RESULTS—TWELVE MONTHS' IMPORTS INTO THE PORTS FROM UP COUNTRY, ETC, THIS YEAR AND LAST YEAR.

The twelve months' figures in table I show (in round numbers) an increase of—

58 per cent in linseed.
(356,200 tons as against 225,100 tons last year.)

18 per cent in wheat (excluding wheat flour).
(1,254,600 tons as against 1,063,000 tons last year.)

15 per cent in gram and pulse.
(496,300 tons as against 4[illegible]0,200 tons last year.)

5 per cent in rape and mustard seed.
(174,300 tons as against 165,900 tons last year.)

The imports of raw cotton by rail, river, and sea into ports show a decrease of 25 per cent (3,146,200 bales as against 4,177,400 bales last year), mainly on account of smaller exports from Bombay, the Central Provinces and Berar, and the Nizam's Territory. The decrease of 22 per cent (1,116,400 tons as against 1,436,900 tons last year) in rice (including paddy) is mainly accounted for by smaller exports from Burma and Madras. The imports of jute into Calcutta show a decrease of 12 per cent (5,199,800 bales as against 5,938,500 bales last year) owing mainly to smaller exports from Bengal and Bihar and Orissa. The fall of 10 per cent (251,378,000 lbs as against 277,939,600 lbs last year) in the imports of tea is mainly due to smaller exports from Assam.

TRADE FLUCTUATIONS IN MARCH 1917 AS COMPARED WITH THE PREVIOUS MONTH.

As compared with February 1917, the imports in March 1917 into the ports referred to above show (in round numbers) an increase of—

131 per cent in linseed
(21,200 tons as against 9,000 tons previous month.)

111 per cent in tea.
(16,150,500 lbs as against 7,657,500 lbs previous month.)

73 per cent in wheat (excluding wheat flour).
(102,200 tons as against 59,000 tons previous month.)

48 per cent in raw cotton
(438,800 bales as against 296,200 bales previous month.)

17 per cent in rape and mustard seed.
(12,000 tons as against 10,200 tons previous month.)

17 per cent in gram and pulse.
(60,200 tons as against 51,300 tons previous month.)

7 per cent in rice (including paddy.)
(109,500 tons as against 102,600 tons previous month.)

and a decrease of—

4 per cent in jute
(253,700 bales as against 265,400 bales previous month.)

Approval of high pressure supply.

(2) Where energy is to be used by an owner at high pressure, the installation shall not be brought into use except with the approval in writing of an Electric Inspector and subject to such conditions (if any) as he may think reasonable and proper in the circumstances.

55. (1) A high pressure circuit shall not be brought into use unless the insulation of every part thereof has withstood the continuous application, during half an hour, in the case of every electric supply-line, machine, device or apparatus of a pressure 50 per cent greater than the maximum pressure to which it is intended to be subjected in use; and the licensee or owner, as the case may be, shall duly record the results of each test :

Testing of insulation of all parts of high pressure circuit.

Provided that the testing pressure need in no case be more than 10,000 volts in excess of the maximum pressure to which the circuit is intended to be subjected in use.

(2) A high pressure electric supply-line shall during its use continue in the sole charge of an authorised person.

56. All high pressure apparatus, including every portion of any high pressure electric supply-line (other than an aerial line) placed above the surface of the ground otherwise than in a sub-station, or in a compartment specially arranged for the purpose and accessible only to authorised persons, shall be completely enclosed in, or protected by, a mechanically strong metal casing or covering securely fastened throughout; and all circuits and apparatus in connection with the same shall be marked at frequent intervals with the word "caution," both in English and in the vernacular.

CANTONMENTS.

REGULATIONS.

No. 834.—In pursuance of section 26-A of the Cantonment Code, 1912, as subsequently amended, the Governor General in Council is pleased to make the following rules prescribing the conditions subject to which a Cantonment Authority may establish and maintain a Provident Fund —

1. These rules may be called the Cantonment Provident Fund Rules, 1917.

2. In these rules unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context :—

(a) "Salary" includes all fixed monthly allowances by way of pay or personal allowances, paid from Cantonment Funds, but does not include allowances granted to meet specific expenditure such as travelling, horse, conveyance or house rent allowances, whether daily, monthly or yearly ;

(b) "Servant" includes every whole-time employee of, and holding a substantive office under, a Cantonment Authority, whether in receipt of a pension from Public Revenues or not, but does not include any servant who may be serving in a post which is pensionable from Public Revenues.

(c) "Depositor" means a servant on whose behalf a deposit is made under these rules ;

(d) "Interest" means the interest which is paid on a deposit at a Government Savings Bank under the rules in force for such institutions.

Explanations.—An employee on probation in a substantive appointment will not be considered a servant for the purpose of these rules until he is confirmed, but on confirmation he may be allowed to subscribe to the fund with effect from the commencement of his probationary service.

3. Every servant appointed or promoted by the Cantonment Authority on or after the date from which these rules come into effect in the cantonment, to an office of which the salary is not less than Rs. 10 per mensem, shall be required to subscribe at the rate of 6¼ per cent or one anna in the rupee, on his salary, to a Provident Fund of which an account will be opened at the Post Office Savings Bank A servant appointed or promoted previous to the coming into effect of these rules, to an office of which the salary is not less than Rs. 10 per mensem, may be permitted by the Cantonment Authority to subscribe to the fund. The deduction shall be made by the Cantonment Authority upon every salary bill presented, and shall be credited at once to the fund. In making this deduction fractions of a rupee of salary should be omitted.

At the time of the deposit each depositor shall furnish a certificate of heirship giving the name and address of the person or persons to whom he assigns his deposit in the case of his decease.

4. The Cantonment Authority shall make a contribution to the deposit account of each depositor, equal to one-half of the amount of the deduction made from his salary under the preceding rule. Such contribution shall be credited to the fund, month by month, in favour of such servant, together with the deduction from his salary. The contribution will be charged in the cantonment accounts to "10—Superannuation," sub-head "Provident Fund."

Provided that, in addition to the contribution made under this rule, the Cantonment Authority may, if it deems fit, make further contributions to be credited to the Provident Fund in favour of any servant as follows :—

After 10 years' approved service,	2 months' pay.
" 15 " " "	3 "
" 20 " " "	3 "
" 25 " " "	4 "
" 30 " " "	4 "

These bonuses are cumulative, that is, a servant who has received a bonus after serving 10 years may, after serving 15 years, receive a second bonus and so on. Though approved service may be reckoned as from the date of commencement of service, no application for a bonus shall be considered unless it is preferred within six months from the date at which the depositor becomes eligible for a bonus. Pay, for the purpose of this rule, means the pay of the applicant on that date.

Provided that, if a servant is transferred to the service of another cantonment maintaining a Provident Fund, his service in his original post shall count towards service for a bonus.

5. The sums credited monthly under Rules 3 and 4 to the Provident Fund Ledger maintained by the Cantonment Authority, shall be paid duly into the Post Office Savings Bank. Such payments should, whenever possible, be made into the Bank between the 1st and 4th of each month, in order that interest may accrue, and the payment in respect of the further contribution shall be made as soon as possible after the Cantonment Authority has sanctioned the same. These deposits may be invested in Government Securities in accordance with Rule 46 of the "Rules for the guidance of depositors in the Post Office Savings Bank." The deposits may also be invested in Government of India loans.

6. The deposits and contributions, with interest thereon, at the credit of any servant, may be withdrawn :—

(1) on the decease of the depositor, when the amount shall be paid to his legal heirs;

(2) on his ceasing to be a servant of the Cantonment Authority either by resignation or by transfer to Government service, when the amount will be paid to him;

(3) on his being transferred to the employment of another Cantonment Authority, when the amount will be transferred by money order to the Secretary to the Cantonment Authority at his new station, for payment into the Post Office Savings Bank.

7. The sum at credit of a depositor is not liable to forfeiture on dismissal or on conviction by a Crimiual Court, except for an offence for which the penalty of forfeiture of the whole of the offender's property is prescribed by law.

8. (i) Amounts credited or debited to the Provident Fund shall on the same day be posted in the Provident Fund Ledger. Separate pages of the account shall be set apart for each month's transaction.

(ii) The entries in column 7 will be made once a year only, except in the case provided by clause (v).

(iii) In column 14 will be entered the minimum balance at the credit of the account between the close of the 4th day and the end of the month.

(iv) When the Ledger has been completed with the monthly interest bearing balances (column 14), those balances will at once be carried to the broadsheet. At the close of the financial year the columns of the broadsheet shall be totalled. When any account is closed down during the year, the amount of interest which has been included in that account in accordance with clause (v) will also be carried to the appropriate place in the broadsheet. The amount of interest added by the Post Office in the Pass Book on the entire amount of the sums deposited during the year to the credit of the Cantonment Authority, less any amount already entered during the year under clause (v), shall be distributed among the individual accounts proportionately to the sums of each column (disregarding fractions of a rupee) of the broadsheet.

The "total of interest payable" should correspond with the amount of interest added by the Post Office.

(v) If any payment has to be made during the year on an individual deposit account under rule 6 or 13, interest shall be calculated on that account only as nearly as possible in accordance with the rules in force in the Post Office. The amount of interest calculated shall be entered in column 7 against the account concerned, before payment is made.

9. A copy of the account of each depositor shall be furnished to him as soon as possible after the close of the financial year to which the account relates, or at the time of payment in the case of accounts closed down in accordance with rule 5.

10. No voluntary deposit from servants will be credited to the Provident Fund.

11. Servants are not eligible to subscribe to the Provident Fund while absent on leave other than privilege leave. (See Article 811, Civil Service Regulations).

12. On a depositor leaving the service, his account shall be closed, and unless the amount at his credit be withdrawn within a certain period, viz., for balances of Rs. 10 and under, one year, and for balances over Rs. 10, three years, it shall be written off as a dead account, and repaid only under the orders of the Officer Commanding the Division.

13. When an account becomes dead, it shall be closed in the Provident Fund Ledger, the money being drawn out of the Savings Bank and credited in the cash book (Form 7, Schedule I, Cantonment Code, 1912) as a miscellaneous receipt. If the amount is subsequently claimed the entries in the cash book and the Provident Fund Ledger shall first be made before the orders of the Officer Commanding the Division are requested and when repayment is made, the fact of payment and a reference to the order shall be made against the entry in each account book, to avoid a double payment.

14. Where a Provident Fund has been established on behalf of any servant under executive arrangements prior to the date of introduction of these rules, the amount at credit of the said servant may be brought forward to his credit in the accounts maintained under these rules.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Season and Crop Prospects for the week ending Saturday, 19th May 1917.

Burma.—The rainfall was general practically throughout the Province. Three districts report falls exceeding 2 inches. In the dry zone very little rain fell. Reaping of spring and summer rice is progressing in Upper Burma. Plucking of tobacco has been practically completed. Harvesting of miscellaneous crops and cultivation of cotton, groundnut and early sesamum continue. Standing crops are in good condition. Livestock is generally healthy. The price of unhusked rice at Rangoon has fallen further to Rs. 101 per hundred baskets and is much below normal. The market for white rice is dull.

Assam.—The weather was hot with light rain. More rain is wanted practically in every plains district. Harvesting of spring rice has been nearly finished with outturn very good Sowing of autumn rice and jute has been practically completed and of winter rice has been nearly finished. Planting of sugarcane and manufacture of tea are in progress. Cattle disease is reported from eight districts. The price of common rice is stationary.

Bengal.—During the week light to moderate rain was almost general throughout the Province and favoured the growth of autumn crops. Agricultural operations have also been greatly facilitated by the rainfall. Preparation of lands for winter rice has commenced. Sowing of autumn paddy and jute continues in western Bengal, and weeding is in progress in eastern Bengal. Prospects of standing crops are good. In some places of the Dacca district, however, paddy plants are being damaged by insects called lohapok and pamari. Some injury is also being caused to paddy by insects in Tippera. Cattle disease is reported from eight districts. The average price of common rice for the Province remained stationary as compared with that of the previous week.

Bihar and Orissa.—During the week rain fell in all districts except Champaran. The fall was generally light. Threshing of spring crops has been nearly completed. Preparation of lands for autumn crops is in progress. Sowings have commenced in some districts. Standing crops are doing well. The price of common rice has risen in five districts, has fallen in three and remained stationary in the other districts as compared with that of the preceding week. The supply of fodder and water is sufficient. Cattle disease is reported from twelve districts. The number of persons on test works in Puri and Singhbhum was 1,346 and 1,362 respectively while 857 persons were gratuitously relieved in Puri. The condition of standing crops in the Feudatory States of Orissa is good.

United Provinces.—Rain has again fallen in several districts causing, in places, slight damage to extra and vegetable crops. Fields are being prepared and manured for autumn crops. Sowing of cotton, indigo and fodder, hoeing of sugarcane and irrigation of sugarcane and extra crops continue. Opium weighment is nearly finished. The condition of standing crops is on the whole good. Agricultural stock is in satisfactory condition and very little cattle disease is reported. Fodder and water are ample. Markets are well supplied. Prices are rising slightly.

Punjab.—Light rain was nearly general except in parts of some central and western districts where only slight and scattered showers were received. Rain though useful for standing extra spring and autumn crops has slightly damaged wheat on threshing floor and in some districts delayed threshing operations which are in progress. The yield is normal or below normal on irrigated and below normal or poor on unirrigated areas. Sowings of cotton and other autumn crops continue and are below normal to normal. Standing extra spring and autumn crops are in average to good condition. Cattle are generally healthy and fodder and water for drinking and irrigation purposes are sufficient. Stocks of food grains are sufficient. Prices are generally stationary but have fallen slightly in some districts. They range generally between normal and warning rates in the south east and between warning and scarcity rates elsewhere. Price of wheat :—Rawalpindi 9¼, Lyallpur 10¼, Ferozepore and Lahore 10¾ and Ambala 10¾ seers per rupee.

North-West Frontier Province.—During the week rain has fallen in parts of the Province, benefiting extra spring sowings. The condition of standing crops both on irrigated and unirrigated areas is average except in one district where unirrigated crops are reported to be below average. Harvesting of wheat is in progress and its outturn is expected to be average. Sowings of cotton, rice and bajra are proceeding. The condition of cattle is good except in parts of one district. The public health is good. Fodder and water are sufficient. The price of wheat in Peshawar was 9$\frac{9}{16}$ and in Dera Ismail Khan 9¼ seers per rupee.

Jammu.—Slight rain fell during the week. Prices are fluctuating. Wheat sells from 8 to 13 and maize from 17 to 25 seers per rupee. The condition of standing crops is below average. Cattle disease prevails in the Basohli tahsil. Fodder is insufficient in certain places.

Kashmir.—The rainfall during the week was fair. Standing crops are in fair condition. Sowings of autumn crops are in progress. Cattle are generally healthy. Water and fodder are sufficient. Prices are high.

Rajputana.—The rainfall during the week was general except in Jaisalmer, Banswara and Dholpur, varying from 54 cents in Bharatpur to 5 inches 27 cents in Jhalawar. The weather is cloudy. Harvesting of spring crops has been almost completed. Threshing and winnowing operations continue in a few places. Land is being prepared for autumn crops and sowing has commenced in some places. Some damage to grains owing to untimely rains is reported from Sirohee and Merwara. Agricultural stock is generally healthy. Water and fodder are ample. Prices are generally stationary, but they are rising in Sirohee, Mewar, Kotah, Tonk and Karauli.

Central India.—The rainfall during the week was partial in Gwalior and general elsewhere except Bundelkhand, the principal fall being over 1 inch in Jhabua. Spring crops are being threshed in Bhopal. Land is being prepared for autumn crops in Indore, Malwa and the Southern States. Agricultural stock is in good condition except for some cattle disease. The fodder supply is sufficient. Prices are rising in Bhopal, have fallen slightly in Gwalior and are steady elsewhere.

Central Provinces.—The weather has been occasionally cloudy and rainy during the week. There was rain all over the Provinces, ranging from 10 cents in Drug to 2¾ inches in Amraoti. Nine districts received over 1 inch. The fall was accompanied by small hailstones in Saugor and Amraoti. Threshing and winnowing continue but the operations were somewhat hampered in the Jubbulpore and Nerbudda divisions and the crops lying on the threshing floor were damaged slightly in five northern districts due to rain. Preparation of land for the sowing of the ensuing season's crops is in progress. There is no deficiency of fodder or water anywhere. Cattle are faring well. Prices of wheat and gram vary slightly exhibiting a downward tendency.

Feudatory States.—Seven States received rain. Ploughing of fields continues. Sugarcane crop is thriving well.

Bombay.—Slight rain fell during the week throughout the Presidency except Larkana, Ratnagiri, Kanara, Ahmednagar, Sholapur, Satara, Bijapur, Belgaum, Kolhapur and Savantvadi. Standing crops are thriving. Harvesting is nearing completion. Cotton picking is progressing in west Khandesh, Belgaum, Dharwar and Kolhapur. Lands are being prepared for autumn sowings. The fodder supply is adequate. Agricultural stock is sufficient. Cattle are in good condition. Drinking water is adequate. Water for irrigation is deficient in parts of Thar and Parkar and Kaira. Prices of food grains have risen in the Deccan, and are generally steady elsewhere.

Hyderabad.—During the week slight showers were received throughout the Dominions except Aurangabad. The average fall was 25 cents. The late rice crop is in fair to good condition and is being harvested. Lands are being prepared for monsoon sowings. Cattle disease prevails in five talukas. Prices of grains are almost constant. The highest price of juar in districts is 8 seers per rupee in Nander and Warangal and the lowest 20 seers per rupee in Mahbubnagar.

Mysore.—No rain fell during the week in Shimoga, Kadur and Chitaldrug but light to fair rain was received elsewhere. Prices of food grains are generally steady. Markets are well supplied. Standing crops are in good condition. The outturn of the harvested paddy, sugarcane and cotton is fair. Ploughing and manuring operations and sowing of paddy, sugarcane and ragi are in progress in parts. Prospects of the season are good. Cattle are generally healthy. Water and fodder are available.

Coorg.—No rain fell during the week. Prices of food grains are slightly lower. The public health is fair. Cattle disease is subsiding. Water and fodder for cattle are sufficient.

Madras.—The rainfall during the week was good in Godavari, Guntur, Anantapur, Nellore and Chittor, fair in Ganjam, Kistna, Kurnool, Bangnapalle and Cuddapah and light or nil elsewhere. Standing crops are in fair to good condition generally except in parts of one district where they require rain. Harvesting of paddy, sugarcane and dry crops is proceeding normally with outturn fair to normal generally. Sowings of paddy, sugarcane and dry crops are proceeding normally. The condition of cattle is generally good. The water supply is insufficient in parts of Godavari, Nellore, South Arcot, South Kanara, Deccan except Kurnool, Central except Coimbatore and South except Tinnevelly and sufficient elsewhere. Pasture is insufficient in seven districts and in parts of six others. Fodder is generally available. Prices are steady.

DEPARTMENT OF STATISTICS, INDIA.

CALCUTTA, MARCH 28, 1917.

Supplementary Memorandum on the WHEAT CROP of 1916-17 for the Fortnight ending 20th March.

It has been decided by the Government of India to publish fortnightly a report on the condition of the wheat crop. These fortnightly reports will continue until the end of May. A special wheat forecast will also be published in the third week of April. The fortnightly reports have not, however, been called for from Native States.

Since the publication of the Second Wheat Forecast on March 12, 1917, revised estimates of area have been received from the Central Provinces and Berar and the Jaisalmer State* of Rajputana. The total revised area for All-India thus stands at 32,885,000 acres as against 32,845,000 acres reported in the Second Forecast.

The general condition of the standing crop is good, except in the unirrigated tracts of the North-West Frontier Province and Delhi, where the crop has been badly damaged by lack of rain. In Bengal the crop suffered from high winds and drought, and its condition is reported to be fair. There has been slight damage by hail or frost in some of the western districts of the United Provinces, in two districts of Bihar and Orissa, and in parts of Delhi. No report has been received regarding the present condition of the crop in the Punjab.

Harvesting has commenced in the United Provinces, the Central Provinces and Berar, Bihar and Orissa, Bengal, and Ajmer-Merwara, and is in full swing in the Bombay Presidency. Threshing has begun in parts of the Central Provinces and Berar and Bombay.

The provincial reports so far received are summarised below :—

United Provinces.—There has been no change in the estimate of area sown. The condition of the crop is reported to be generally satisfactory. There has been slight damage by hail in some of the western districts. Hot west winds which set in last week, are ripening the crop somewhat too rapidly. But nothing has occurred so far to affect the outturn, which is estimated at 100 per cent (normal) for the provinces as a whole. Harvesting has begun in Bundelkhand.

Central Provinces and Berar.—The area sown in the British districts is now estimated at 3,745,000 acres as against 3,716,000 acres reported in the Second Forecast, or an increase of nearly 1 per cent. The area in the Native States of Khairagarh and Nandgaon has also been raised to 130,000 acres from 124,000 acres in the Second Forecast. The combined area comes to 3,875,000 acres as against 3,840,000 acres in the Second Forecast. There has been no rainfall during the fortnight and no damage is reported. Harvesting commenced from 22nd February and is likely to be completed by the end of April. Threshing has begun only in nine districts. Prospects of yield are reported to be excellent.

Bombay and Sind.—There has been no change in the estimate of area sown. No rain fell during the fortnight and weather conditions continue favourable throughout the Presidency and Sind. Harvesting of unirrigated wheat is in full swing in the Presidency, and threshing has commenced in places. In the Karnatak the crop has been benefited by recent rains and is now estimated to yield above normal.

Bihar and Orissa.—There has been no change in the estimate of area sown. Recent rains have been beneficial to the wheat crop. Slight damage by hail and frost is, however, reported from small areas in two districts. Harvesting has just commenced in most districts of the Patna and Tirhut divisions. Prospects of the crop are good.

North-West Frontier Province.—No change has been made in the estimate of area sown. Slight rain fell in some districts, but more rain is badly wanted throughout the province. The condition of the standing irrigated crop is generally average, but that of the unirrigated crop is below normal and even poor in certain places. Harvesting is not undertaken before the end of April.

Bengal.—There has been no change in the estimate of area sown. High winds have laid the crop in parts of Murshidabad, but little damage is reported. In Pabna the rainfall of February last has improved the condition of the crop. In Burdwan slight damage has been caused by the rainfall of the past weeks; whereas in Nadia and Darjeeling drought has slightly affected the crop. Prospects are reported to be fair on the whole. Harvesting has commenced and is likely to be completed by the end of April. The outturn is not generally reported to be satisfactory.

Delhi.—No change has been reported in the estimate of area sown. Lack of rain has adversely affected the unirrigated crop, and there has been damage by chill and frost. These adverse conditions may reduce the outturn to half the normal crop. Harvesting has not yet commenced.

Ajmer-Merwara.—The estimate of area sown remains unchanged. Rain fell throughout the province, but no damage has been reported. Harvesting has commenced in Merwara.

G. FINDLAY SHIRRAS,

Director of Statistics.

* In the Second Forecast the area for Jaisalmer was stated as 4,015 acres, which was the first estimate for the State. This has since been revised to 9,267 acres.

DEPARTMENT OF STATISTICS, INDIA

May 29, 1917

G. FINDLAY SHIRRAS,

Director of Statistics.

DEPARTMENT OF STATISTICS, INDIA.

CALCUTTA, MAY 29, 1917.

Final General Memorandum on the WINTER OILSEEDS (Rape, Mustard and Linseed) Crop of 1916-17.

THIS forecast is based upon reports received from provinces where rape, mustard, and linseed are grown to any considerable extent. These provinces contain 99·2 per cent of the total area under rape and mustard, and 98·9 per cent of the total linseed area in British India. Of the Native States, estimates are furnished only by Hyderabad and the Native States in the Bombay Presidency (including Baroda).

The total area under rape and mustard is now reported to be 6,507,000 acres, which is one per cent above the finally revised area of last year. The total estimated yield is 1,186,000 tons, as against 1,102,000 tons, the revised final figure of last year, or an increase of 8 per cent. The detailed figures for each province are given below :—

The total area under linseed amounts to 3,533,000 acres, which is 6 per cent above the finally revised area of last year. The total estimated yield is 520,000 tons as against 476,000 tons, the revised final estimate of last year, or an increase of 9 per cent. The detailed figures for each province are given below :—

In addition to the areas for which particulars are given above, the crops are grown in certain other tracts in British India, and the average areas so grown for the last five years have been some 51,000 acres under rape and mustard and some 37,000 acres under linseed. And on account of these areas an outturn of 0·8 per cent (or about 9,000 tons) may be added to the estimated total yield of rape and mustard and of one per cent (or about 5,000 tons) to that of linseed, given above.

The condition of the crops is generally reported to be good, except in Assam where the rapeseed crop suffered through drought, and in Bengal where the linseed crop was at first adversely affected by heavy rainfall and later by drought.

The provincial reports are summarised below :—

Rape and Mustard

United Provinces (40·4 per cent of the total area under rape and mustard in British India).—The area sown with the unmixed crop is reported to be 156,000 acres, which is 14 per cent below the area of last year. The decrease occurred mainly in Oudh. The yield is estimated at 29,000 tons, which is 15 per cent short of last year's yield. The area and yield of rapeseed grown mixed with other crops, as borders and lines, and used chiefly for home consumption, are roughly estimated at 2,500,000 acres and 468,000 tons as compared with 2,400,000 acres and 450,000 tons last year. The crop suffered in places from insect pests, and the yield has been moderate. For the provinces as a whole the outturn is estimated at 75 per cent of the normal.

Bengal (20·8 per cent of the total area under rape and mustard in British India).—The area sown is reported to be 1,225,000 acres, which is 7 per cent below last year's area. The yield is estimated at 238,000 tons, which is 2 per cent above the yield of last year. The excessive rainfall of September and October retarded sowings generally. The heavy showers in the first part of November checked further sowings and caused some damage to the crops already sown. Since then the total absence of rain interfered with the development of the crop to some extent. The average outturn for the province as a whole is estimated at 88 per cent of the normal as against 80 per cent last year.

Punjab (17·1 per cent of the total area under rape and mustard in British India).—The total area is now estimated at 1,083,000 acres, which is 4 per cent short of last year's area. The yield is reported to be 163,000 tons, which exceeds the yield of last year by 12 per cent. Owing to heavy rain in July and September the season was very favourable for sowing, but the absence of winter rains led to failures on the unirrigated area in the Lahore and Rawalpindi Divisions. The decrease in area is, however, attributed to the restriction in foreign demand and consequent low prices. Toria (an early variety of rapeseed), which is almost entirely grown on irrigated land, did better than other oilseeds. Its yield was normal to good, while that of other oilseeds was generally below normal, and in parts of the south-east poor.

Bihar and Orissa (11·6 per cent of the total area under rape and mustard in British India).—The total area sown is reported to be 758,000 acres, which is nearly 5 per cent above that of last year. The yield is estimated at 167,000 tons, which is 22 per cent in excess of last year's yield. The rainfall in February was below normal in Shahabad, Palamau, and the Bhagalpur Division, normal in Patna and Darbhanga, and above normal elsewhere. In March light rain was fairly general over the province. The weather conditions have been favourable on the whole for the growth of the crops, and the yield has generally been satisfactory. According to district estimates, the average outturn for the province works out to 95 per cent of the normal against 86 per cent estimated last year. The Director of Agriculture, however, believes this is an under-estimate and the outturn will not fall short of the normal or 100 per cent.

(a) Including Native States (b) 200 tons (c) 100 tons

Assam (4·7 per cent of the total area under rape and mustard in British India).—The total area sown is reported to be 284,000 acres, which is 13 per cent below last year's area. The yield is estimated at 49,000 tons, which is 18 per cent short of last year's yield. The weather was unfavourable at the time of sowing. Practically no rain fell in December and January anywhere, except in Darrang, Sibsagar, and Lakhimpur, and the drought retarded the growth of the crop to a considerable extent.

Sind (2·9 per cent of the total area under rape and mustard in British India).—The total area sown is reported to be 279,000 acres (11,000 acres being in the Khairpur State), which shows an increase of 37 per cent over last year's area. The yield is estimated at 42,000 tons (2,000 tons in the Khairpur State) as against 17,000 tons last year. The increase in area is attributed to good rains and favourable inundation. The outturn is reported at three-fourths of the normal in Upper Sind Frontier and Khairpur; elsewhere between 50 to 70 per cent.

Bombay (0·1 per cent of the total area under rape and mustard in British India).—The total area reported is 53,000 acres (50,000 acres being in the Native States), which is 47 per cent above that of last year. The extension in cultivation is attributed to good sowing rains. The total yield is estimated at 14,000 tons (13,000 tons in the Native States) as compared with 6,000 tons last year. The crop throve well owing to favourable seasonal conditions, and is expected to yield between 80 to 85 per cent of the normal

North-West Frontier Province (1·6 per cent of the total area under rape and mustard in British India).—The total area sown is estimated at 163,000 acres, which exceeds the area of last year by 48 per cent The yield is estimated at 16,000 tons, which is 16 per cent below last year's yield. Climatic conditions at sowing time were more favourable in the southern than in the northern parts of the province The crop was somewhat damaged by rain on the threshing floor. The outturn on irrigated areas was average in Peshawar and Bannu, and below average elsewhere, while on un-irrigated areas it was generally below average.

Hyderabad reports 6,000 acres and 200 tons as against 6,000 acres and 100 tons last year.

Linseed

Central Provinces and Berar (38·4 per cent of the total area under linseed in British India).—The total area sown is reported to be 1,176,000 acres (1,128,000 acres in the Central Provinces and 48,000 acres in Berar), which is 12 per cent above last year's area. The yield is estimated at 99,000 tons (92,000 tons in the Central Provinces and 7,000 tons in Berar), which is 19 per cent above last year's yield The increase in area is due partly to the favourable seasonal conditions at sowing time and partly to the substitution of linseed where cotton and jawar failed owing to excessive rain. Sowings were made under favourable conditions everywhere, except in Nagpur, Seoni, Mandla, Chanda, Bhandara, Bilaspur, and Yeotmal, where operations were somewhat impeded owing to heavy and continuous rains in September and October. Germination was on the whole good, although some resowing was necessary in parts of Jubbulpur, Nimar, the Chhattisgarh tracts, and some of the above-named districts. Cloudy weather, untimely rain, hail, rust, and insects slightly damaged the crop in parts of Damoh, Hoshangabad, Nimar, and in the Nagpur, Chhattisgarh, and Berar divisions, and reduced the outturn in several districts. For the provinces, as a whole, a normal crop was reaped.

United Provinces (31 per cent of the total area under linseed in British India).—The area under linseed sown unmixed is reported to be 354,000 acres, which is 20 per cent above that of last year. The increase is shared by all tracts where the crop is chiefly sown unmixed. The yield is estimated at 72,000 tons, which is 22 per cent more than last year's yield. The yield has uniformly been satisfactory, and the seed is reported to be of good quality. For the provinces, as a whole, the outturn is estimated at 95 per cent of the normal. The area and yield of linseed grown mixed with other crops, and used chiefly for home consumption, are roughly estimated at 675,000 acres and 138,000 tons as compared with 650,000 acres and 130,000 tons last year.

Bihar and Orissa (17·8 per cent of the total area under linseed in British India).—The total area is reported to be 668,000 acres, which is less than one per cent above last year's area. The yield is estimated at 147,000 tons, which is 8 per cent above the yield of last year. The weather conditions have been favourable, on the whole, for the growth of the crop, and the yield has been satisfactory.

Bengal (5·7 per cent of the total area under linseed in British India).—The total area sown is reported to be 157,000 acres, which is 13 per cent below last year's area. The yield is estimated at 25,000 tons, or a decrease of 10 per cent as compared with last year. The decrease in area is attributed to excessive rainfall at sowing time. The season was, on the whole, generally unfavourable, and the average outturn is estimated at 73 per cent of the normal as against 70 per cent last year.

Bombay (4·8 per cent of the total area under linseed in British India).—The total area sown is reported to be 148,000 acres (14,000 acres being in the Native States), which is 16 per cent short of last year's area. The total yield is estimated at 20,000 tons (1,000 tons being in the Native States), which falls 20 per cent below last year's yield. The cultivation was restricted throughout, except in Khandesh and Ahmednagar in the North Deccan, on account of untimely and excessive rain. The season has, since the last forecast, been favourable, and the crop has fared well except in places where rain early in February damaged it to some extent.

Punjab (1·2 per cent of the total area under linseed in British India).—The total area sown is reported to be 34,000 acres, or an increase of 3 per cent as compared with last year. The yield is estimated at 2,900 tons as against 2,700 tons last year. The season was favourable for sowing, on account of heavy rains in July and September, but owing to the absence of winter rainfall the yield was generally below normal and in parts of the south-east poor.

Hyderabad reports 321,000 acres under linseed, which shows an increase of 11 per cent as compared with last year. The total yield is estimated at 16,000 tons, which is 33 per cent above last year's yield.

DEPARTMENT OF STATISTICS, INDIA

CALCUTTA, MAY 26, 1917.

Third General Memorandum on the WHEAT CROP of 1916-17.

This memorandum is based on the third or final reports on the wheat crop of the season 1916-17, received from local authorities, and relates to 98 5 per cent of the total wheat area in India. The returns, therefore, cover practically all the important wheat growing areas of India. Telegraphic reports on the condition of the wheat crop for the fortnight ending 20th May have been included in this memorandum. The final memorandum on the wheat crop, will be issued in the second week of August.

The total area is estimated at 33,040,000 acres as compared with 30,143,000 acres at this time last year, or an increase of 10 per cent. The total yield is estimated at 10,160,000 tons as against 8,518,000 tons reported at this time last year, or an increase of 19 per cent. It may be noted that the figures of both area and yield are the highest on record.

The detailed figures are as follows :—

It will be seen that the present estimate of yield as against the estimate made at this time last year, shows an increase of 128 per cent in Rajputana, 68 per cent in Hyderabad, 37 per cent in Central India, 20 per cent in the Central Provinces and Berar and also in Bombay, 19 per cent in the Punjab, 14 per cent in the United Provinces, 13 per cent in the North-West Frontier Province, 9 per cent in Delhi, 7 per cent in Sind, and 3 per cent in Bihar and Orissa.

The condition of the crop is good, except in parts of the unirrigated * areas in the Punjab and Delhi. The unsettled weather in April and May has slightly affected the quality of the crop, and caused some discolouration of the grain in northern and central India. Harvesting has been completed everywhere except in parts of the North-West Frontier Province. Threshing operations, retarded by the recent rains, still continue in parts of northern and central India.

The provincial reports are summarised below :—

Punjab (33 per cent of the total area under wheat in India).—The total area is now estimated at 10,799,000 acres (1,269,000 acres being in the Native States) as against 10,256,000 acres reported at this time last year, or an increase of 5 per cent. The total yield is estimated at 2,961,000 tons (379,000 tons being in the Native States) as against 2,487,000 tons at the corresponding period of last year, or an increase of 19 per cent. The deficient winter rainfall seriously affected the canal supply, except in the Western Jumna Canal and the Sirhind Canals, where the water supply was not unsatisfactory; but further west, especially in the canals constituting the Triple Project, the shortage of water was marked. The Lower Bari Doab Canal suffered most, and the supplies which it obtained, were at long and irregular intervals. The rainfall in April was harmful in the east and south-east of the province, where much of the wheat had been cut, when it occurred. But, on the whole, it did more good than harm, as it benefited very greatly the crop of the northern Punjab, where harvesting generally begins later than in the further east. The unirrigated crop is, on the whole, distinctly better than that of last year, but it is far less than it would have been, had normal winter rains fallen. The crop irrigated from wells is generally very fair, but the yield of the canal irrigated crop, save in the east of the province, is below the average. The year has shown markedly the advantages of light loamy soil in such rainfall conditions as obtained this year. The crop on this soil was distinctly better than on heavier lands. There have been no complaints of disease, and rust has naturally been far less prevalent than usual. Later report shows that light or moderate rain has been received very recently in all the districts, and some damage has been done to wheat grain and straw on threshing floors. The effect of this rainfall on the quality of the grain will, it is anticipated, show itself in a very small proportion of discoloured, weathered, and sprouted grains. Reaping has been finished. Threshing, which has been delayed by unfavourable weather, continues and is likely to be completed by the end of this month.

United Provinces (23·2 per cent of the total area under wheat in India).—The total area under wheat is now estimated at 6,833,000 acres as against (a) Including Native States.

* The unirrigated area is on the average of the five years ending 1915-16 about 50 per cent of the total wheat area in the Punjab 51 per cent in the United Provinces, 73 per cent in the North-West Frontier Province, and 44 per cent (three years' average) in Delhi.

6,621,000 acres reported at this time last year, or an increase of 3 per cent. The total yield is estimated at 3,086,000 tons, which is about 14 per cent above the estimate made at this time last year. Weather conditions were, on the whole, favourable for the crop. As reported in the Special Forecast (April), the weather was unsettled during March with local storms and hail, but no damage was done. The weather has since been cloudy and unsettled, and heavy showers of rain have recently fallen, and have seriously delayed threshing and winnowing operations in the western districts, and it is estimated that a third to a half of the crop is still on threshing floors. With fine weather the actual loss may not be large, but there will probably be a considerable quantity of discoloured grain. Over the rest of the provinces threshing has been for the most part completed. Later returns, based on experimental weighments, confirm the estimates made in the Special Forecast. They are generally favourable and vary from 95 to 105 per cent of the normal, except in the Meerut and Gorakhpur divisions, where the crop is estimated at 90 per cent of the normal For the provinces as a whole the crop is estimated at 95 per cent of the normal, as compared with 90 per cent last year.

Central Provinces and Berar (11·5 per cent of the total area under wheat in India).—The total area is now estimated at 3,977,000 acres (3,400,000 acres in the Central Provinces, 447,000 acres in Berar, and 130,000 acres in the Native States of Khairagarh and Nandgaon), which is 10 per cent above the area reported at this time last year. The total yield is estimated at 1,165,000 tons (1,010,000 tons in the Central Provinces, 117,000 tons in Berar, and 38,000 tons in Khairagarh and Nandgaon) as compared with 973,000 tons at this time last year, or an increase of nearly 20 per cent. The weather in the first fortnight of April was warm and cloudy with local storms. Hail fell in places but no serious damage was caused. During the fortnight ending the 20th May light to moderate showers were received throughout the provinces and slight damage was caused in places, especially in the northern districts, to the crops lying on threshing floors. Showery weather still continues. Threshing and winnowing operations were retarded owing to rain in a few districts, but are approaching completion. Harvesting has now been finished everywhere. Climatic conditions have been generally favourable to the crop, although untimely rain in Chanda and the absence of winter rains in Bhandara slightly affected the plants in places. The average outturn for the Central Provinces and Berar is estimated at 109 per cent of the normal, as against a normal crop last year. The State of Khairagarh estimates an outturn of 115 per cent and the Nandgaon State 105 per cent of the normal.

Bombay (6 per cent of the total area under wheat in India).—The total area is estimated at 2,188,000 acres (586,000 acres being in the Native States) as against 2,049,000 acres reported at this time last year, or an increase of 7 per cent. The total yield is estimated at 593,000 tons (202,000 tons being in the Native States), which is about 20 per cent above the estimate made at this time last year. The crop generally throve well everywhere in the Presidency, except in a few places, mainly in the Deccan, where rain in February affected the crop. The unirrigated crop was harvested in Gujarat and the north Deccan generally in the first fortnight of March and in the south Deccan and the Karnatak by the end of February. The irrigated crop was reaped a fortnight to a month later. Threshing has been completed.

Sind (1·7 per cent of the total area under wheat in India) —The total area is estimated at 600,000 acres (22,000 acres being in the Native State), which is 5 per cent above the area reported at this time last year. The total yield is estimated at 178,000 tons (5,000 tons in the Native State) as against 162,000 tons reported at this time last year, or an increase of 7 per cent. Rain at the end of March caused rust in places in the south, and the insufficiency of water supply on the Jamrao Canals reduced the outturn of the crop. Some damage was also done by hailstorm in the north. Elsewhere the crop did well. The crop in Thar and Parkar is reported to be half the normal. Elsewhere the yield ranged between 67 to 90 per cent of the normal.

Bihar and Orissa (4·1 per cent of the total area under wheat in India).—The total area is estimated at 1,308,000 acres as against 1,330,000 acres estimated at this time last year, or a decrease of 2 per cent. The total yield is estimated at 598,000 tons, which is 3 per cent above that reported at this time last year. The weather conditions have, on the whole, been more than ordinarily favourable for the growth of the crop, and reports of yield are generally satisfactory. Slight damage to wheat on threshing floors by recent rainfall is reported from three districts. Threshing has been almost completed. According to the estimates of District Officers the average outturn for the province works out to 91 per cent of the normal ; but the provincial Director of Agriculture remarks that the estimates appear to be below the mark, and in view of the beneficial rain of February, he is of opinion that the outturn will not fall short of 105 per cent, and on this basis the total yield given above has been estimated.

North-West Frontier Province (3·4 per cent of the total area under wheat in India).—The total area is estimated at 1,054,000 acres, which is about 23 per cent above the area reported at this time last year. The total yield is estimated at 239,000 tons as against 212,000 tons reported at this time last year, or an increase of 13 per cent. Rain accompanied by hailstorm recently fell in certain places, but no serious damage has been caused to the crop. Harvesting is in progress and will be completed by the middle of next month. Threshing has commenced, and is in full swing in certain tracts.

Bengal (0·5 per cent of the total area under wheat in India).—The total area is estimated at 129,000 acres, which is 4 per cent less than that reported at this time last year. The total yield is estimated at 40,000 tons, the same as last year. The season was, on the whole, unsatisfactory for the crop owing to excessive rain at sowing time and to drought later on. The winter rain came too late to be of any real benefit to the crop. The rainfall in the fortnight ending the 20th May had no effect on the crop which had already been harvested. Threshing has been finished.

Delhi (0·1 per cent of the total area under wheat in India).—The total area and yield are estimated at 36,000 acres and 12,000 tons as against 28,000 acres and 11,000 tons reported at this time last year. Harvesting began from the 29th March and was finished in the first week of May. Threshing is not in full swing owing to untimely rainfall, and less than half the crop has been threshed and winnowed. It is reported that the recent rain reduced outturn 10 per cent.

Ajmer-Merwara (0·1 per cent of the total area under wheat in India).—The total area and yield are estimated at 28,000 acres and 10,000 tons as against 12,000 acres and 2,000 tons last year. Hail at places in Kekri and rain in Beawar damaged the wheat lying on threshing floors to some extent ; otherwise reports of yield are satisfactory.

Central India (9 per cent of the total area under wheat in India).—The total area sown is reported to be 3,581,000 acres, as against 2,969,000 acres at this time last year, or an increase of 21 per cent. The total yield is estimated at 891,000 tons, as against 649,000 tons at this time last year, showing an increase of 37 per cent. Detailed figures* are as follows :—

Freights.—Wheat freights at or about the middle of April 1917 are shown in the table below as compared with those at the corresponding period of the previous two years, and those at the outbreak of war :—

* Government rates for foreign steamers.

It will be seen that, as compared with this time last year, freights from the United States Atlantic Ports have risen by 159 per cent, those from India (Karachi) have risen by 140 per cent, and from Australia by 82 per cent.

Wheat crops in foreign countries.—The latest available information published by the International Institute of Agriculture, Rome, is as follows :—In the Argentine the area and yield are estimated at 16,082,000 acres and 2,069,000 tons as against 16,413,000 acres and 4,615,000 tons in 1915-16. In Australia the estimates are 12,525,000 acres and 3,835,000 tons as against 12,525,000 acres and 4,801,000 tons, in 1915-16. From the April Crop Report, issued by the Department of Agriculture, United States of America, it appears that the estimates of winter wheat in the United States of America are 40,090,000 acres and 11,518,000 tons as against 37,256,000 acres and 12,911,000 tons in 1915-16. The average condition of the crop for the whole country is estimated to be 63·4 per cent, as against 78·3 per cent in April, 1916. In France the area under wheat is estimated at 10,564,000 acres as against 12,435,000 acres in 1915-16. In Spain the estimate of area is 10,130,000 acres as against 9,835,000 acres last year.

From unofficial sources it appears that both in Canada and the United States of America steps are being taken to assist farmers in the sowing of spring wheat in every way with good seed and extra labour. In Canada reports as to the prospects of sowing are good. It is reported that in the United Kingdom the condition of winter wheat "has been about maintained", in spite of the bad weather; but the late sown crop is thin and poor, and the acreage is 8 per cent below last year's: spring seeding is naturally going slowly, and the work is in arrears. In France the weather is reported to be cold and unseasonable, and the crops are not doing well. It is estimated that 494,000 acres under winter wheat will have to be ploughed up, owing to the damage done by the unfavourable weather experienced during the past few months. In Italy prospects for the new crops are fairly good. In Australia prospects of sowing a large acreage for the next crop are bright, as Government are guaranteeing growers a price, which it is believed they will find satisfactory.

If this maximum is exceeded by a Candidate's selection he will be required to indicate one of his subjects, the marks for which should, in his case, be reduced so as to bring his maximum marks within the prescribed limit. 9. In the Final Examination, as in the Open Competition, the merit of the Candidates examined will be estimated by marks (which will be subject to deductions in the same way as the marks assigned at the Open Competition), and the number set opposite to each subject denotes the greatest number of marks that can be obtained in respect of it. The examination will be conducted on paper and vivâ voce, as may be deemed necessary.

If any Candidate is prevented by sickness or any other adequate cause from attending such examination, the Commissioners may, with the concurrence of the Secretary of State for India in Council, allow him to appear at the Final Examination to be held in the following year, or at a special examination.

10. The selected Candidates will also be tested during their probation as to their proficiency in Riding.

The examinations in riding will be held as follows :—

2. The same concession may also be granted to those who have been employed during the same period in connection with the armed forces of the Crown at home or abroad giving their whole time and under obligation to serve for the duration of the war or until their discharge, or for any period not terminable at their own option, provided that their employment be not on ordinary commercial terms, such as that of Assistant Paymasters, Clerks, artisans, and the like.

3. The grant of the concession described in paragraph (2) will be at the discretion of the Civil Service Commissioners, whose decision in each case will be final. Candidates who contemplate applying for an age deduction under (2) will do well to apply to the Civil Service Commission for a ruling on their case.

4. Candidates to be eligible for the concessions in (1) or (2) must furnish an official certificate of the period and satisfactory character of their service and if any doubt arise whether the service of any candidate is of the kind contemplated, the Secretary of State for India in Council reserves to the Civil Service Commissioners the right to decide the case upon its merits.

The Civil Service Commissioners are authorized by the Secretary of State for India in Council to make the following announcements :—

(i) Selected Candidates will be allotted to the various provinces upon a consideration of all the circumstances, including their own wishes; but the requirements of the Public Service will rank before every other consideration.

(ii) Except in the case of persons continuing to receive Scholarship allowances of equal or greater amounts from the Government of India an allowance amounting to £150 will be given to any Candidate who passes his probation at one of the Universities or Colleges which have been approved by the Secretary of State, viz., the Universities of Oxford, Cambridge, Dublin, Glasgow, Edinburgh, St. Andrews, Aberdeen and London (University College); Victoria University, Manchester.

This allowance will be paid to the selected Candidate in four instalments on the following dates respectively:—December 24th, after his selection, March 25th, June 24th, and the date of his signing his covenant on being finally appointed to the Service.

An allowance on account of passage to India will be paid to each newly appointed civilian to the amount of £40, for passage to Calcutta, Madras or Bombay, and £50 for passage to Rangoon. These allowances will only be paid after production of evidence that the officer has engaged a First Class passage. An Officer who prefers it can have a First Class passage taken for him by the India Office in lieu of receiving a passage allowance. Applications giving proposed dates of sailing should be made to the Secretary, Judicial and Public Department, India Office, London, S.W. 1.

The payment of each of the first three instalments will be conditional on the receipt, by the Secretary of State, through the Civil Service Commissioners, of a Certificate that the Candidate has fulfilled up to date the requirements of the Authorities, and shown satisfactory conduct at the Authorized University or College; the fourth and final instalment will be paid as soon as the selected Candidate has signed his covenant, and for its payment no certificate from College Authorities will be required.

The whole probation must ordinarily be passed at the same Institution. Migration will not be permitted except for special reasons approved by the Secretary of State.

(iii) Each Candidate will be required before receiving the first instalment of his allowance to execute an agreement binding himself and one surety, jointly and severally, to refund all monies he may have received from the Secretary of State for India in the event of—

(1) his failure to pass the Final Examination within the time prescribed by the Regulations, and to satisfy the Civil Service Commissioners of his fitness for admission to the Indian Civil Service, or

(2) his subsequent failure to execute the usual covenant, and to proceed to India, as and when he shall be directed by the Secretary of State for India.

(iv) All Candidates obtaining Certificates will be also required to enter into covenants, by which, amongst other things, they will bind themselves to make such payments as under the rules and regulations for the time being in force, they may be required to make towards their own pensions or for the pensions of their families. The stamps payable on these covenants amount to £1.

(v) The seniority in the Indian Civil Service of the Candidates obtaining Certificates will be determined according to the order in which they stand on the list resulting from the combined marks of the Open Competitive and Final Examinations, but may ultimately be affected by appointments made by the Secretary of State under the Temporary Provisions Act, 1915.

(vi) Candidates obtaining Certificates will be required to report their arrival in India within such period after the grant of their Certificates of Qualification as the Secretary of State may in each case direct.

(vii) Candidates who fail to satisfy the Civil Service Commissioners at the Final Examination held in any year will be definitely rejected, and will not be allowed to present themselves for re-examination, unless it shall appear to the Secretary of State in Council, after reference to the Civil Service Commissioners, that such failure is due to circumstances wholly exceptional and beyond the control of the Candidate.

A minute and detailed knowledge will not be looked for in this part of the Examination. But its aim will be to test how far the Candidates have studied at first hand the chief productions of the greatest English writers, and are acquainted with the leading characteristics of their thought and style, and with the place which each of them occupies in the history of English Literature.

The other part of the Examination will relate to one of the following periods, which will follow each other year by year in rotation :—

The Examination in this part will require from the Candidates a more minute acquaintance with the history of the English Language and Literature, as illustrated in the chief works produced in each period, and will be based to a considerable extent, but by no means exclusively, on certain books specified each year by the Commissioners. The names and other indications placed beside the dates are intended to suggest the general character of the literary development of the period, and, consequently, the natural limits of the Examination. RESOLUTION—By the Government of India, Finance Department.

In paragraphs 108-110 of the speech of the Hon 'ble the Finance Member introducing the Financial Statement for 1917-18, it was announced that it had been decided, with the approval of the Secretary of State for India, to treat expenditure under the head "33—Famine Relief", with effect from the year 1917-18, as divisible between Imperial and Provincial revenues in the proportion of ¾ and ¼. The previous arrangements for the apportionment of the expenditure as well as the reasons which led to the change are stated at length in the Government of India, Finance Department, circular letter No. 2044-F., dated the 31st December 1914 and in their despatch to the Secretary of State for India No. 307, dated the 23rd December 1916, which, together with the replies from the Local Governments concerned and the Secretary of State, are published for general information.

2. The incidence of the expenditure on famine relief in provinces with which regular Provincial settlements are in force will be governed in future by the following rules :—

(i) All expenditure on famine relief from the 1st April 1917 (including that incurred in the provinces of Burma and Assam to which the previous scheme for the adjustment of famine expenditure did not apply and in the non-jurisdictional estates in Bombay) will be divided between Imperial and Provincial revenues in the proportion of three-fourths and one-fourth, the credits which have accumulated in favour of Provincial Governments in the pro forma accounts of famine expenditure maintained under the previous arrangements being written off from that date.

(ii) If the Provincial share of expenditure resulting from a widespread and prolonged famine should be so great as to reduce the Provincial balance below one half the prescribed minimum, the treatment of further expenditure will be a subject for special arrangement at the time.

(iii) Expenditure incurred during observation and test will in future be charged to the head "33—Famine Relief" instead of as entirely Provincial expenditure to "32—Miscellaneous" or "45—Civil Works".

(iv) Under the special prophylactic scheme of relief which obtains in the Central Provinces, works specially undertaken for the relief of distress after scarcity has been declared should be classed as "scarcity works" if their cost cannot be met either from the budget provision for civil works or by reappropriation. The cost of these scarcity works will be charged to the head "33—Famine Relief," subject to the proviso that, when the budget for any year has to be framed with reference to the existence of famine or quasi-famine conditions, the grant under the head "45—Civil Works" shall be placed at a figure not less than that for the last normal year.

ORDERED that this Resolution be communicated to all Local Governments and Administrations, the Revenue and Agriculture and the Public Works Departments, the Comptroller and Auditor General, the Controller of Currency, and all Civil Accountants General and Comptrollers.

Ordered also that this Resolution be published in the Gazette of India.

No. 2044-F, dated 31st December 1914.

To— { All Local Governments (except Burma).
The Hon'ble the Chief Commissioner, Central Provinces.

SIR,

I am directed to refer to the Resolution* moved by the late Hon'ble Rai Sri Rám Bahádur in the Imperial Legislative Council on the 7th March 1914, with reference to the scheme for the apportionment of famine relief expenditure introduced by the orders contained in the Government of India's Finance Department letter No. 1674-A., dated the 20th March 1907, and to the undertaking given by the Hon'ble Finance Member in the course of the ensuing debate to consider whether the provincial allotments under that scheme required revision. The existing arrangements have accordingly been carefully re-examined. The primary object of this scrutiny was to consider the possible rectification of minor inequalities as between different provinces, but their study of the question has led the Government of India to think that a more radical revision of the scheme may be desirable. Before framing their final conclusions and addressing the Secretary of State thereon, they would be glad to receive the opinions of Local Governments on the suggestions put forward in this letter.

* Vide Gazette of India (Part VI), dated the 14th March 1914, page 625-626.

2. The Provincial Famine Insurance scheme, as it may be conveniently termed, has now been in force for seven years, and has been tested in this interval by the frequent occurrence of famine expenditure, though not on the almost continuously high scale † experienced in the quinquennium 1896-97 to 1900-01. Its main object was to lay down definite rules on liberal lines as to the extent to which expenditure on famine relief should be treated as an Imperial obligation, and from this point of view it has, it is believed, in the absence of any extreme test, worked satisfactorily, and has proved acceptable to Local Governments.

3. This object, however, was associated with an elaborate and technical procedure which appears to the Government of India to be capable of simplification. Prior to the introduction of the existing arrangements, it was the practice for the Government of India to set aside annually, in non-famine years out of Imperial revenues, by debit to "Reduction or Avoidance of Debt", a sum of Rs. 75 lakhs, the expenditure being shown in the accounts as Imperial, and being actually devoted to productive capital expenditure. In famine years this allotment was reduced by the amount of expenditure actually incurred on famine relief, and was thus suspended altogether if that expenditure exceeded Rs. 75 lakhs. The underlying idea, to which the present scheme owes its peculiar form, was that there should not only be an Imperial allotment towards the reduction or avoidance of debt, but provincial allotments as well, i.e., that each Local Government the territories of which are liable to visitations of famine should annually set aside a fixed amount under this head, the expenditure being treated as Provincial. This annual provincial allotment was to be regarded as a form of insurance payment, in return for which any famine expenditure incurred by a province was to be wholly Imperial within certain prescribed limits. The extent to which any particular Local Government is thus entitled, at any given time, to have its future famine expenditure treated as Imperial is represented by its "famine credit" in the pro formâ account, which has to be maintained under the system described.

4. If under the scheme the provincial allotments towards the reduction or avoidance of debt had been found from revenues already assigned to the provinces, the arrangements introduced in 1907 would have involved an insurance of a genuine kind. Since, however, no allowance had been made for the liability of a province to famine in the calculation of the revenues to be assigned to it under its provincial settlement, the Government of India accepted the position that any sum required by a province under this scheme for expenditure under "Reduction or Avoidance of Debt" must be supplied by an assignment from Imperial revenues. The normal Imperial allotment to "Reduction or Avoidance of Debt" was accordingly reduced to Rs. 37½* lakhs, and the remaining Rs. 37½ lakhs are transferred annually to Provincial by an assignment through the Land Revenue head, the amount so transferred being then treated as provincial expenditure under "Reduction or Avoidance of Debt". Accordingly, subject to the incidental consequence referred to in paragraph 6 below, the whole transaction, so far as the regular accounts are concerned, is a paper adjustment only.

*The total Imperial and Provincial allotments respectively are liable to modification when any province or provinces have reached their maximum credit, but it will suffice to state the normal position.

5. These technicalities of the present system present great difficulties to the increasing number of non-official Members of the Legislative Councils who take an intelligent interest in financial matters, as well as to the public generally, and complicate all explanations of figures and transactions in regard to famine insurance and famine relief expenditure. It appears to the Government of India that nothing essential would be sacrificed if this portion of the scheme were abandoned in favour of a reversion to the older practice of debiting the entire allotment for reduction or avoidance of debt under Imperial. The provincial allotments and the corresponding assignments through the Land Revenue head would then disappear; but the pro formâ account would be maintained as at present; and the substantial interests of the Local Governments would be in no way affected.

6. An indirect consequence of the existing system is that while the Imperial portion of the allotments to "Reduction or Avoidance of Debt" is wholly or partly suspended in years of famine, as explained in paragraph 3 above, the provincial portion continues in full, in order to secure to the Local Governments a continuance of their annual credits without abatement. From a financial standpoint, this practice is undesirable. In years of severe famine, the Government of India's resources are in any case strained to meet expenditure on famine relief, and, in addition, their revenues are likely to be severely depleted. It may be, indeed, that a deficit has to be faced. It is not suitable that at such times the Government of India should be setting current revenues aside for productive capital outlay in the guise of famine insurance. The proper course would be to conserve their resources for the exclusive purpose of meeting the famine itself. If the various adjustments connected with the present arrangements are abandoned, the former and more correct procedure in this respect will automatically be restored.

7. It has already been pointed out that there has been no experience, since the introduction of the present scheme, of continuous famine outlay on the scale experienced in the years preceding, when, not infrequently, a province, already exhausted by one year's famine, was again confronted with heavy famine outlay in the following year, or a year or two later. In such a case, the present system, which relies upon the gradual building up of the so-called famine credits, would inevitably break down. The amount at credit might be exhausted in the first year of severe famine, and on the early recurrence of the calamity the province concerned would have only one or two years' allotments at its credit. It appears to the Government of India that in this respect the present scheme, to some extent, disregards the difficulties which it was primarily designed to meet. It gives very liberal assistance to a province in which famine conditions happen to recur at relatively long intervals, while another province, which suffers from famine to the same aggregate extent in the same period, but whose misfortunes are compressed within a few almost consecutive years, would benefit to a relatively minor extent, though intrinsically even more deserving of assistance. In other words, the famine credit, or the sum assured if the analogy of insurance is to be used, should be a credit automatically reviving on the termination of each distinct period of famine, and not dependent on a long period of previous immunity.

8. Such a modification of the existing scheme will involve an important new benefit to the provinces, and though the Government of India are prepared to recommend a change on these lines to the Secretary of State, if the suggestion commends itself to the Local Governments, the concession ought to be accompanied by some curtailment or rectification of the scheme in other respects. In the first place, it would be reasonable to reduce to some extent the maximum credits at present allowed. This will be more clearly appreciated from the illustration of the actual operation of the suggested revised scheme which is given in paragraph 12 below. As will be seen later, however, the Government of India do not propose to reduce to any large extent the aggregate of the maximum credits at present allowed, but some material reduction seems called for in one or two cases with a view to the rectification of existing inequalities.

9. The existing annual credits were based on the average annual famine expenditure of each province during the 25 years ending 1905-06, and roughly represent about half these amounts; and the present maximum credits, though bearing no uniform relation to the corresponding annual credits, were influenced by them, and so far as this was the case, they too are dependent on the past averages of famine expenditure above referred to. As famine expenditure is in most years of a long cycle either altogether absent or relatively insignificant in any given province, these averages were dominated almost entirely by the heavy famine outlay of the period 1896-97 to 1901-02, and the influence of that period is thus reflected also in the standards adopted for the maximum credits. Some provinces, in the period mentioned, incurred outlay on an exceedingly large scale, and in the present arrangements, the tacit assumption has thus been stereotyped that they will necessarily suffer to an equally exceptional extent in the future. It is no doubt true, and should be recognised, that, taking provinces as a whole, the liability of Bombay, the Central Provinces and the United Provinces to famine outlay is distinctly greater than in other parts of India. But it appears to be statistically incorrect to base the permanent arrangements exclusively on the experience of a single famine cycle. It is by no means certain that the provinces which then suffered most will, on a future occasion, have to incur an equally heavy outlay, especially in view of recent developments in the methods of famine administration. On the other hand, it is at least possible that the provinces the outlay of which in 1896-97 to 1901-02 was on a lower scale may occasionally be more severely assailed in future. If the principle of an annually reviving credit is adopted in future, the annual credits will naturally disappear entirely, and the maximum credit will be the only significant datum. It seems, therefore, to the Government of India to be important to take the present opportunity of rectifying any serious relative disproportion between these maxima; and the foregoing criticisms suggest that the right course, in applying the experience of 1896-97 to 1901-02, will be to reject extremely low or extremely high results, i.e., to fix the maxima for such provinces as Bombay and the Central Provinces at somewhat lower figures than that experience would suggest, and in the case of some other provinces, to make fuller provision for the contingencies of the future. In any case it is clear that a higher proportion of the aggregate credit allowed should be assigned to the United Provinces whatever statistical hypothesis be adopted.

10. A second and minor defect of the existing arrangements, which might, as the Government of India think, be simultaneously remedied, is the fact that, within the prescribed maximum limits, they throw upon Imperial the entire liability for famine outlay however small. The expenditure may amount in a particular year to a few lakhs only, and it may be incurred by a province with an overflowing balance. It appears anomalous that in such a case the Imperial Government, which may then or in the near future be bearing a heavy burden on account of areas more severely stricken, should also undertake the relatively insignificant outlay of provinces which, for the time being, are almost entirely exempt. It appears, therefore, to the Government of India that Local Governments might well be required to meet from provincial resources the first few lakhs of famine outlay in all cases. They suggest, as a convenient and uniform standard that the first portion of the total outlay which would thus be wholly provincial should be an amount represented by 10 per cent. of the maximum credit in each case.

11. The precise procedure to be adopted in connection with a system of reviving credits is a matter not free from difficulty. A severe famine originating in the failure of some particular monsoon will probably involve famine outlay in the remaining half of the same financial year and in the earlier months of the following year. The "famine year" may in fact be coveniently regarded as extending from 1st October to the 30th September. If the following monsoon is again unfavourable, so that famine relief outlay has to be continued beyond the 30th September, a new and distinct famine may be regarded as commencing from the 1st October of the second year.

12. The entire proposals for modifying, without altogether abrogating, the existing system, may perhaps be most clearly exhibited by a hypothetical example. It may be supposed that under the existing system the maximum credit of a particular province is Rs. 30 lakhs, towards which it normally contributes a sum of Rs. 5 lakhs yearly. Under the scheme now proposed, this annual contribution will disappear. The maximum credit may reasonably be reduced to Rs. 25 lakhs, and the Local Government may be required to meet all famine expenditure up to Rs. 2½ lakhs. Accordingly, if the monsoon of a particular year (1915-16) fails and severe famine occurs, with the result that famine outlay to the extent of Rs. 50 lakhs is incurred between the 1st October 1915 and the 30th September 1916, the first Rs. 2½ lakhs of this outlay will be wholly provincial; the next Rs. 25 lakhs will be wholly Imperial; and the remaining Rs. 22½ lakhs will be shared equally between Imperial and Provincial. If the monsoon of 1916-17 also fails or is so unfavourable that, in consequence of the already impoverished state of the province, relief operations continue to be necessary beyond the 30th September 1916, the first Rs. 2½ lakhs of famine outlay incurred between the 1st October 1916 and 30th September 1917 will be wholly provincial; any further outlay in the same period up to Rs. 25 lakhs will be wholly Imperial; and any further outlay still, in excess of Rs. 27½ lakhs, will be equally divided. In like manner if famine had recurred after a somewhat longer interval, the Local Government, apart from its own liability to meet the early expenditure, would start each agricultural year with a full famine credit of Rs. 25 lakhs, whatever the history of previous years had been.

13. It appears to the Government of India that, if such a system be adopted, it would be reasonable to fix the future maximum credits at the following amounts :—

	[In thousands of rupees.]
Central Provinces	50,00
Bengal	5,00
Bihar and Orissa	20,00
United Provinces	50,00
Punjab	12,50
Madras	25,00
Bombay	62,50
	2,25,00

The relation between the latest famine statistics and the proposed credits will be found in Statement II appended to this letter, which also sets forth the existing standards. It will be seen that, taking the provinces as a whole, the total credits proposed fall short by only 10 per cent. of those at present conceded.

14. While, however, the proposed system will, it is thought, retain and extend all that is essential in the present methods, it too is not altogether free from the reproach of complexity. In particular, there is a certain incovenience in the calculation of famine expenditure with reference to the agricultural year from the 1st October to the 30th September instead of to the financial year. This inconvenience, though in itself open to objection, can hardly be avoided if the system of reviving credits is to be applied. A credit which revived in full on the first April of a year in which famine was already established, and continuing would in effect be given twice over for the same famine, and the credit itself would accordingly have to be on a much reduced scale. The practical operation of such an arrangement would be extremely uncertain, and it is doubtful if the Local Governments and that portion of the public which is interested in such matters would feel the same confidence in a reduced allowance bearing only a very arbitrary relationship to the famine outlay occurring in the periods which the allowance covered.

15. The Government of India would accordingly ask the Local Governments to consider the much simpler alternative of abandoning the present system altogether, and treating the head " 33, Famine Relief " as an ordinary divided head, the Imperial share of famine relief expenditure being taken uniformly at $\frac{3}{4}$ and the provincial share at $\frac{1}{4}$. This particular distribution is suggested as it represents roughly the assistance which Imperial actually gives, in the long run, towards famine expenditure under existing arrangements. This inference is based on a careful study of the available statistics, but the points involved are complex and do not admit of precise statistical treatment. The Government of India do not, therefore, propose to develop this conclusion in full. They think it will be readily recognized by the Local Goverments that the acceptance of three-quarters of all future famine expenditure would involve very full recognition of the Government of India's responsibility for coming to the aid of the provinces in times of agricultural disaster, and that no Local Government can reasonably press for a smaller provincial share. Whatever system be adopted, it is essential that it should recognize the financial responsibility of Local Governments for the due control of the famine relief expenditure which they administer. The alternative of treating it as uniformly divisible, while enforcing this requirement more prominently, will relieve the Local Governments from contingencies such as that mentioned in paragraph 7, for which the existing system makes little provision; it will avoid the complication involved in reckoning the famine year from the 1st October; and it is free from the elaboration which even a modified form of the existing arrangements must perpetuate.

The adoption of this alternative would also, of course, involve its extension to those provinces (Burma and Assam) which, owing to their practical immunity from famine, are not included within the scope of the present scheme.

16. In short, the principal advantages of the scheme proposed in the preceding paragraph may be summed up as follows :—

(1) It does away with the complexities and disadvantages inherent in the present scheme, as also with those which would remain under the modifications of that scheme which have been suggested in the earlier part of this letter.

(2) It obviates the possibility of invidious comparisons between one province and another in respect of the amount of assistance obtained from Imperial revenues. Every one of them will be on the same footing, receiving aid to the extent of $\frac{3}{4}$ of its actual famine outlay.

(3) The system will be simple throughout. There will not be different and confusing stages, viz., (a) as suggested in paragraph 10, full expenditure from Provincial, (b) full expenditure from Imperial, and (c) an equal division.

(4) The Provincial burden will bear a direct proportion to the amount of famine outlay necessary, and will run no risk of being heightened by the fact that there has been a previous famine not long before. The disturbance to Provincial finances, which a famine on any considerable scale must inevitably produce will therefore be kept within definite bounds, whereas under the existing system it might on occasions assume much larger proportions.

17. It will probably be found impracticable for the Government of India to submit proposals to the Secretary of State and obtain his orders in time for the introduction of a revised system as part of the budget of 1915-16. The Government of India would be glad, however, if possible, to receive the views of Local Governments at an early date, so that they may be in a position to make some pronouncement on the subject in connection with the forthcoming financial statement.

Secretary to the Government of India.

No. 118, dated Fort St. George, the 15th February 1915.

From—The HONOURABLE MR. A. BUTTERWORTH, I.C.S., Chief Secretary to the Government of Madras,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Finance Department.

In reply to your letter No. 2044-F, dated the 31st December 1914, on the subject of the apportionment of famine relief expenditure, I am directed to state that the Governor in Council agrees with the Government of India that the simplest and most satisfactory solution of this question is to treat the head 33—Famine Relief as a divided head in the ratio of ¾ths Imperial and ¼th Provincial.

2. I am to add that if this method is not to be adopted, the Government of Madras would prefer to retain the existing arrangements for the financing of famine expenditure rather than to accept the proposal to establish a system of annually reviving credits as described in paragraphs 10 to 12 of your letter. That method in addition to being even more complicated than the present system would be very unfavourable to Provincial finances.

No. 565-Fincl., dated Lahore, the 25th February 1915.

From—The HONOURABLE MR. R. A. MANT, I.C.S., Financial Secretary to the Government, Punjab,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Finance Department.

I am directed to refer to your letter No. 2044-F., dated the 31st December 1914, asking for the opinion of this Government on certain proposals put forward by the Government of India for revising the present system of apportioning expenditure on famine relief between Imperial and Provincial revenues. The first proposal of the Government of India is to abolish the practice of transferring Rupees 37½ lakhs annually from Imperial to Provincial revenues, and of debiting the amount so transferred as provincial expenditure under the head "Reduction or Avoidance of Debt." The Lieutenant-Governor, I am to say, has no objection to this proposal, provided that the pro forma account is maintained as at present and that no change is introduced in the final incidence of famine relief expenditure.

2. The second proposal is to modify the present distribution of the expenditure on the following lines. At present the Punjab receives an annual credit of Rupees 1,40,000 which may be accumulated up to Rs 10 lakhs, and all actual disbursements on famine relief are debited to Imperial revenues up to the limit of the accumulated credit. Expenditure beyond that limit is divided in equal shares between Imperial and Provincial. It is now proposed that in lieu of accumulating credits the province should start each "famine year, beginning on the 1st October", with a lump credit of Rs. 12½ lakhs, and that all famine relief expenditure in the year should be distributed as follows:—

The first 1¼ lakhs ... ... Provincial.

The next 12½ lakhs ... ... Imperial.

The remainder ... ... ½ Imperial and ½ Provincial.

3. One of the effects of this proposal would be to transfer to Provincial a considerable amount of expenditure which under the present arrangements is met from the Imperial revenues. Statement I appended to your letter shows that in the last five years, though there has been no famine in the province, expenditure has been regularly incurred on famine relief. These disbursements which represent mainly the cost of carrying fodder by rail at concession rates, have all been treated as Imperial. The proposed system would only benefit Provincial revenues when two or more famines followed one another in rapid succession, and His Honour considers that in view of the extension of irrigation, the development of communications, the wider fields of employment, and the higher wages now commanded by labour in the Punjab, he is justified in regarding this as a remote contingency. He is therefore of opinion that the proposal would, in all probability, throw a much heavier burden on Provincial revenues than they have to bear under the present arrangements, and he is therefore strongly opposed to the change.

4. As a minor objection I am to point out that in paragraph 6 of the Finance Department letter No. 4064, dated the 20th July 1906, one of the advantages claimed for the present system was that it would give Local Governments a real inducement to stave off as long as possible the stage at which Imperial assistance becomes inevitable. If the Local Government were to be required to spend Rupees 1½ lakhs before establishing a claim to Imperial assistance, it would have no inducement to economise this sum in any year when it is clear that the total expenditure will exceed the initial Provincial debit.

5. An alternative proposal which is suggested, and preferred, by the Government of India is to abandon the present system altogether, and to treat "33—Famine Relief" as an ordinary divided head, to be shared between Imperial and Provincial in the proportion of ¾ to ¼. This proposal has the merit of simplicity, and Sir Michael O'Dwyer is inclined to think that it would probably be less detrimental to provincial interests in the long run than the scheme referred to in paragraph 2 above. But it is also open to the objection that it would transfer to Provincial revenues a portion of the expenditure which in ordinary years is under the present system classed as Imperial and that its advantage from the provincial point of view would be dependent on the frequency and severity of future famines. As explained above, His Honour thinks it reasonable to hope that the province will be better secured in the future against these visitations than it has been in the past; he therefore considers that the treatment of one-fourth of the total famine relief expenditure as Provincial is likely to be considerably more costly to the province than the present system, and if required to make a choice between the two, he would prefer to adhere to the latter.

6. Sir Michael O'Dwyer is, however, in sympathy with the desire of the Government of India to simplify the system of accounting for expenditure on famine relief, and, what he regards as more important, to secure economy in its disbursement. He therefore puts forward, for the consideration of the Government of India, the following further alternative, which is designed to achieve both the above objects. His Honour understands from the remarks made in paragraph 9 of your letter and from the figures shown in Statement II that it is admitted that an annual credit of Rs. 2 50,000 would be more appropriate for the Punjab than the present assignment of Rs. 1,40,000. If the present credit is raised to the former figure, i.e., Rs. 2½ lakhs, and converted into a permanent assignment, the Lieutenant-Governor would be prepared to accept the responsibility for all future famine relief expenditure as a wholly Provincial charge. He is aware that, in offering to pledge the province to this obligation, he is involving it in a certain amount of risk; but, after full consideration of all the circumstances and probabilities of the case, he has come to the conclusion that the risk is fairly balanced by the prospect of gain in normal years from a fixed assignment. Such an arrangement would also appear to have some advantages for the Government of India. In return for a fixed annual payment they would be insured against the large and indefinite demands to which they are periodically liable under the present system.

No. 2439-F., dated Ranchi, the 22nd February 1915.

From—The HONOURABLE MR. E. L. L. HAMMOND, I.C.S., Secretary to the Government of Bihar and Orissa,

From—The Secretary to the Government of India, Finance Department.

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 2044-F., dated the 31st December 1914, inviting the opinion of the Local Government on the proposed modification of the existing Provincial Famine Insurance Scheme.

2. The Local Government agree in the view that the procedure for the apportionment of famine relief expenditure introduced by Mr. Meston's letter No. 1674-A, dated the 20th March 1907, is complicated and technical. It seems to them, however, that this is due chiefly to the system of passing the credits and debits through the Provincial budgets, which does not appear to be a necessary part of the scheme; the pro forma account might very well be maintained without it, in which case the procedure would be comparatively simple and intelligible.

3. If, however, a change is to be made, the Lieutenant-Governor in Council would much prefer the alternative indicated in paragraph 15 of your letter, i.e., the would abandon the present system altogether, and treat the head "33—Famine Relief" as a divided head, the Imperial share being taken at three-quarters and the provincial share at one-quarter. In this case credit would have to be allowed in the Financial Settlement for the Provincial share of famine expenditure. In ordinary years, free from famine, this amount would be allowed to accumulate in the Provincial balances, while in a year of severe famine, the fund should be drawn upon, with the previous sanction of the Government of India, to the extent necessary for the famine expenditure which cannot be conveniently met by reappropriation from other heads in the Provincial budget. The other alternative described in paragraphs 8—14 of your letter is more complicated than the present system would be, if modified in the manner indicated above; and so far as can be judged from the figures quoted in Statement I, appended to your letter, it would involve a much heavier proportional expenditure from Provincial revenues.

No. 1437-F., dated Calcutta, the 5th March 1915.

From—The HONOURABLE MR. H. L. STEPHENSON, C.I.E., I.C.S., Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Financial Department,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Finance Department.

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 2044-F., dated the 31st December 1914, in which the Government of India suggest two alternative schemes in modification of the existing Provincial Famine Insurance Scheme. Before framing their final conclusion and addressing the Secretary of State the Government of India enquire which of the two schemes will be more advantageous to this Presidency.

2. In reply, I am to state, for the information of the Government of India, that for this Presidency where famines are likely to be rare past experience shows that the existing system offers greater advantages than either of the alternatives now suggested, but His Excellency in Council admits that because famines are rare in Bengal, the consideration of the circumstances of this Presidency should not outweigh the objections urged against the present system in repect of provinces more unfortunately situated. Of the alternative schemes suggested His Excellency in Council greatly prefers the second as detailed in paragraph 15 of the letter under reply.

No. 958, dated Allahabad, the 17th March 1915.

From—The HONOURABLE MR. A. W. PIM, Secretary to the Government of the United Provinces, Financial Department,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Finance Department.

I am directed to refer to your letter No. 2044-F., of the 31st December 1914, requesting the opinion of the Local Government on certain suggestions put forward in connection with the scheme for the apportionment of famine relief expenditure introduced by the orders contained in the Government of India's Finance Department letter No. 1674-A., dated the 20th March 1907.

2. In the letter under reference the Government of India observe that the Provincial Famine Insurance Scheme has been tested by the experience of seven years and is believed, in the absence of any extreme trial, to have worked satisfactorily as regards its main object and to have proved acceptable to Local Governments.

This object, however,—the determination on liberal lines of the extent to which famine relief should be treated as an Imperial obligation—was associated with an elaborate and technical procedure which appears to the Government of India to be capable of simplification. It results, you remark, in the financially undesirable practice that, while the Imperial portion of the allotments to "Reduction or Avoidance of debt" is wholly or partly suspended in years of famine, the provincial portion continues in full in order to secure to the Local Governments a continuance of their annual credits without abatement. Finally by making no special provision for dealing with a succession of rapidly recurring famines, it disregards to some extent the difficulties which it was primarily designed to meet.

3. As one of two alternative methods of remedying these defects, a scheme is set out in your letter, of which a prominent feature is the automatic revival of the famine credit in a province where it has been depleted by actual expenditure on relief. Under the existing scheme the credit, after a famine which has exhausted it, has to be slowly built up again to the maximum by the accumulation of the annual credits allowed to the province. By the arrangement which you now describe, the maximum credit will be restored at once after a famine; and a second feature of importance is that this revival will operate at the beginning of the agricultural year and not of the financial year. In other words, the year will, for famine purposes, be considered as running from the 1st October to the 30th September, and the credit available on the 1st October will be valid against relief expenditure occurring during the succeeding twelve months irrespective of the fact that the expenditure in question will be shown in the accounts of two financial years. Should a second failure of the monsoon necessitate further heavy expenditure during the succeeding cold weather, the famine credit will automatically revive from the 1st October.

4. Your letter then goes on to point out that, inasmuch as the automatic revival of a liberal credit involves an important new benefit to the provinces, it may in fairness be accompanied by a modification and some redistribution of the existing maxima; in carrying out this change, the Government of India suggest the assigning of a higher proportion of the aggregate credit to the United Provinces. Finally they point out that second and minor defect may at the same time be remedied by providing that the first portion of the outlay on each individual famine should be wholly provincial up to an amount equivalent to 10 per cent. of this maximum credit in each case.

5. The alterations in the existing system which have been thus outlined will, in the opinion of the Government of India, retain and extend all that is essential in the present system. They will not, however, leave it altogether free from the reproach of complexity, more especially owing to the introduction of the October to September year;—a procedure which could only be avoided (if the system of reviving credits is to be maintained) by a serious reduction in the amounts of maximum credits. The Government of India therefore recommend to the special consideration of Local Governments a second and much simpler alternative scheme by which the present system will be abandoned altogether and the head "33—Famine Relief" will be treated as an ordinary divided head, the Imperial share of famine relief expenditure being uniformly taken as ¾th and the Provincial share at ¼th. This system will avoid all the complexities and disadvantages attaching to the present scheme, and to the modified (or first alternative) scheme, while involving a very full recognition of the responsibilty of the Government of India for coming to the relief of provinces in times of agricultural disaster.

6. I have been directed to summarize the proposals in your letter thus fully, in order that the Local Government may be corrected, if it has failed in any respect to understand a question of admitted complexity. Assuming that the case has been rightly epitomized above, the Lieutenant-Governor wishes, in the first place, to express his general agreement with the criticisms contained in your letter on the existing arrangements. Sir James Meston was never impressed by the special virtue of the account system which they involve, and he readily concurs in the desirability of simplifying it and making it more intelligible. In the second place this Government is particularly gratified that recognition is now given to the exiguous share which the United Provinces have received of the benefits of the scheme. Since the present system of the provincial credits was introduced, this Government has had to finance two famines, one in 1907-08 and the other in 1913-14. The famine of 1907-08 found the province with the credit of 22,50 and resulted in a total provincial expenditure of 93,64; that of 1913-14 commenced with a credit of 18,95 and cost the province 15,78. If, as it is now admitted, it would have been equitable, the annual credit had been 10 lakhs instead of 4½ lakhs, and the accumulated provincial credit 60 lakhs at the commencement of the first famine, then the provincial share of the total expenditure would have been 69,89. The famine of 1913-14 would have found the province with a credit of about 35 lakhs and would have resulted in provincial expenditure of only 5 lakhs.

7. The Lieutenant-Governor understands, however, that the mere enlargement of our provincial credit, coupled with the retention of all the other incidents of the present scheme, is not contemplated. The Government of India desire consideration only of the two alternative and virtually new schemes described respectively in paragraphs 3 and 4 and in paragraph 5 of this letter. Both these schemes would unquestionably benefit this province. Had the former or more elaborate system been in force during our last two famines, the provincial expenditure would have been 83,44 in 1907-08 and 7,25 in 1913-14. Had the simpler or ' shared head ' procedure been in force, our outlay would have been 51,94 and 13,75 respectively. As between the two alternatives, it is calculated that with a famine costing about 85 lakhs the share of the province is equal for the two schemes. Above that limit the ' shared head ' system favours the province, but below it the scheme based on the October—September year is advantageous to provincial revenues. This comparison does not, however, fully take into account the great advantages resulting from the revival of the provincial credit which forms the main feature of the first of the two alternative schemes. The importance of this consideration is accentuated by the fact that the history of recent famines shows a rightly increasing liberality in the scale of famine expenditure, more especially as regards measures taken for the preservation of cattle. During the recent famine in these provinces great pressure was put upon this Government to incur responsibilities for cattle preservation which it was unwilling to accept ; and even with every desire to avoid extravagance it may be expected that in the future the occasions on which relief measures may be expected to be undertaken will recur with greater frequency than in the past. Atlhough, therefore, the ' shared head ' system is more advantageous to provincial revenues in the case of severe famines, these advantages are likely to be more than counterbalanced by the recurring revival of provincial credits which is the main feature of the former alternative. Another novel feature of that alternative, namely the debit of an initial moderate percentage of the cost of famine relief to provincial revenues, is open to no objection of principle. On the whole, therefore, the Lieutenant-Governor would welcome the former or more complicated alternative as more likely to assist the famine policy of this province.

8. His Honour is afraid, however, that the complexity of this scheme, both acknowledged and unforeseen, would be serious handicap ; and in the case of a famine extending over more than one monsoon it would be practically impossible to separate the expenditure of the successive financial year. It will thus apparently be difficult to discover any system which will be at the same time fairer and more intelligible than the treatment of the head "33—Famine Relief" as a divided head on the lines now suggested by the Government of India. The arguments which formerly told against this system have lost much of their importance with the gradual codification of famine policy. while its influence in making Local Governments economical in their famine expenditure from the outset is of great importance. The Lieutenant-Governor is therefore fully prepared, subject to two conditions, to support the proposed division of this head of expenditure in the ratio of ¾th Imperial to ¼th Provincial. The first condition is that this arrangement does not result in any other modification of the Provincial settlement. The second condition is one to which I am to invite the special consideration of the Government of India in the following paragraphs of this letter.

9. The debit from the outset of even one-fourth of direct famine relief charges to Provincial revenues will impose a new and at times a very heavy burden on provincial balances. It is in theory for such emergencies as famine that these balances have been built up, but in practice the general financial position makes it most unlikely in the case of this province that the Local Government will be able to replenish in any reasonable time the draft that would be made upon them by a heavy famine prolonged over two financial years. It is true that the Government of India insure the province against one of the most serious indirect consequences of famine by guaranteeing a minimum of land revenue collections ; but the other indirect consequences on a variety of the revenue heads such as Stamps, Excise and Forests, hit us hard in a year when expenditure is abnormally heavy under many heads. Again, the sequels of famine are a serious consideration. It is true that windfalls occur in the recovery of famine suspensions of revenue—windfalls, however, of which the bulk goes to the Imperial head. But against this must be set the risks of taqavi loans in which the Government of India have no share. Liberal taqavi advances are becoming a more prominent feature in each succeeding famine and it is impossible to hope for escape from heavy failures in repayment, more especially when bad seasons follow a widespread scarcity.

Moreover the definite policy of this Government is to reduce the recourse to direct relief works as far as possible by enlarging the ordinary programme of the Public Works Department. It is thus obvious that the provincial revenues have now to bear a large and, with the development of the modern famine policy, a growing proportion of the total financial consequences of famine, apart from the share which they will in future have to take of the expenditure under the head "33—Famine Relief". In estimating what that share will be, a calculation has been made which shows that, in the case of a famine costing less than 140 lakhs, the maintenance of the present allocation of charges between Imperial and Provincial would be more advantageous to the province than the 'shared head' system, provided always that the province is conceded an initial credit of 60 lakhs. For all famines, therefore, within this high margin of cost the province is—taking into account all the consequences of a famine dealt with on modern lines—likely to be considerably worse off than it would be if the present system were maintained with the single change of suitable maximum credit.

10. In view both of this disadvantage and of the general considerations urged above His Honour would suggest that the Provincial liability under the head "33—Famine Relief" be subject to a definite maximum; the charges becoming wholly Imperial after that maximum has been reached. What the figures should be, is for the Government or India to decide; but in view of the fact that the average annual expenditure of this province on famine has been 20½ lakhs, the Lieutenant-Governor would urge, as the second condition of the new arrangement, that the maximum burden on Provincial revenues in any one year should not exceed 25 lakhs. Any substantial famine in this province lasts over two financial years, and would thus involve Provincial expenditure up to 50 lakhs a sum at least as large as Provincial balances are ever likely to be able to endure.

No. 2114, dated Bombay Castle, the 31st May 1915.

From—The HONOURABLE MR. G. CARMICHAEL, C.S.I., I.C.S., Chief Secretary to the Government of Bombay, Financial Department,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Finance Department.

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 2044-F., dated 31st December 1914, on the proposed modification of the existing Provincial Famine Insurance Scheme, and to offer the following remarks on the proposals made therein.

2. The Governor in Council accepts the statement made in the second sentence of paragraph 2 of the letter from the Government of India that the existing scheme has worked satisfactorily and proved acceptable to the Local Governments, except that it applied only to direct famine expenditure and excluded from its purview indirect famine expenditure—an exclusion against which the Bombay Government twice protested* in vain—and that it has, moreover, not been subjected to the strain of a really big famine. Since the introduction of the present scheme, a further slight modification detrimental to Provincial finances has been made with effect from 1913-14, which requires that all expenditure (even on objects which fall under the head direct expenditure) shall be debited to Provincial heads, if it is incurred during the period of test and observation and famine is not subsequently declared (vide foot-note No. 167-A., Appendix P. to the Civil Account Code, Volume II), The Government of India now propose to remodel the Provincial Famine Insurance Scheme, the objects in view being stated to be a possible rectification of minor inequalities as between different provinces and a simplification of procedure. As both these objects appear to involve, in some respects at least, modifications still further detrimental to Provincial finances, the proposals are examined somewhat closely in the following paragraphs.

*Letter to the Government of India, Finance Department, No. 3588, dated 20th September 1916 (paragraph 5), and letter to the Government of India, Department of Revenue and Agriculture (Famine), No. 5727, dated 14th June 1909 (paragraph 2).

3. The four tabular statements noted below are appended to this letter :—

(a) Statement marked A, showing the direct and indirect famine expenditure for the period of eleven years (1896-97 to 1906-07) preceding the existing Provincial Famine Insurance Scheme, which includes the big famines of 1896-98 and 1899-1901 and two bad years 1901-02 and 1902-03 ;

(b) Statement marked B, showing the direct and indirect famine expenditure for the eight years during which the present Provincial Famine Insurance Scheme has been in force, which includes no big famine and two years only moderately bad, viz., 1911-12 and 1912-13 ;

(c) Statement marked C, showing in thousands of rupees the amounts of direct and indirect famine expenditure incurred during the years 1896-97 to 1906-07, which would be debitable to Provincial and Local revenues under (i) the present Provincial Famine Insurance Scheme, (ii) the revised credit system described in paragraph 12 of the letter under reply, and (iii) the 3 to 1 division scheme mentioned in paragraph 15 of the same letter ; and

(d) Statement marked D, showing in thousands of rupees the amounts of direct and indirect famine expenditure incurred during the years 1907-08 to 1914-15, which would be debitable to Provincial and Local revenues under (i) the revised credit system, and (ii) the 3 to 1 division scheme mentioned above. Prior to the year 1907-08, when the existing Provincial Famine Insurance Scheme came into force, no allowance was made for famine expenditure at the time of fixing the standards of Provincial revenue and expenditure for the purposes of Provincial Settlement. But it was ruled that when famine did occur the charges for famine relief should be debited to Provincial and it was only when Provincial resources were exhausted that the Government of India necessarily came to the assistance of the Local Government. Thus there was no regular method of division other than the ability or inability of Provincial finances to pay, and the figures of Provincial famine expenditure for the years prior to 1907-08 therefore afford no sound basis for comparison with the expenditure which would be debitable to Provincial revenues under the existing Provincial Famine Insurance Scheme and the two alternative schemes proposed in the letter from the Government of India under reply. The figures as worked out from Statements A and C appended to this letter, however, stand as shown below in thousands of rupees. In these figures the "Local" expenditure is massed with "Provincial", because under the present Famine Relief Code local bodies are relieved of famine expenditure, except to an extremely small extent.

	Period from 1896-97 to 1906-07.
	Direct.	Indirect.	Total.
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
(i) Expenditure actually debited to Provincial (Statement A)	18,77	1,20,64	1,39,41
(ii) Expenditure which would be debitable to Provincial under the existing Provincial Famine Insurance Scheme under the most favourable circumstances, viz., starting with a maximum credit of 80,00.	2,42,75	1,20,64	3,63,39
(iii) Expenditure which would be debitable to Provincial under the revised credit system proposed by the Government of India.	1,99,02	1,20,64	3,19,66
(iv) Expenditure which would be debitable to Provincial under the 3 to 1 division scheme proposed by the Government of India.	1,65,96	1,20,64	2,86,60

These figures show that if, as is quite within the range of possibility, this Presidency were to be visited with a series of bad years comparable with the period from 1896-97 to 1906-07, and if the scale of expenditure were to be at all proportionate to that entailed in that period, the scheme most favourable to Provincial finances is the 3 to 1 division scheme mentioned in paragraph 15 of the letter from the Government of India.

4. During the period of eight years (1907-08 to 1914-15) for which the existing Provincial Famine Insurance Scheme has been in force there has been no big famine and two years only moderately bad, viz., 1911-12 and 1912-13. It will be seen from Statement B that under the existing arrangement, famine expenditure debited to Provincial (including Local) revenues amounted to 26,90 (direct 8 plus indirect 26,82), while the amount to the credit of the Local Government in the pro forma account is estimated at 63,09 on 31st March 1915. The figures in Statement D show that the expenditure which would have been debitable to Provincial finances under the two schemes now proposed by the Government of India is as shown below:—

	Direct.	Indirect.	Total.
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
(i) Under the revised credit system	16,56	26,82	43,38
(ii) Under the 3 to 1 division scheme	11,67	26,82	38,49

These figures show that in a series of ordinary years both the schemes now proposed by the Government of India are less favourable to the Provincial finances than the present system, but the 3 to 1 division scheme is less unfavourable than the other.

5. The existing Provincial Famine Insurance Scheme provides that in the case of widespread and prolonged famine, if in any province the Provincial share of expenditure thus limited should be so great as to reduce the Provincial balance below one-half of the prescribed minimum, the treatment of further expenditure will be a subject for special arrangement at the time. From the figures in column 10 of Statement C it is manifest that in 1900-01 and probably in the two following years this proviso of the system would have had to come into play, for Provincial balances could not have stood the total burdens (shown in the margin *) of direct and indirect famine expenditure in four successive years without being depleted. What the special arrangements would have been cannot be stated, for experience since the present scheme has been in force does not supply any case approaching the catastrophe of 1900, and it seems futile to make any calculation based on a supposed special arrangement. It will be seen from column 12 of Statement C that if the 3 to 1 division scheme now proposed by the Government of India were in force, Provincial finances would have been required to meet an average famine expenditure of 12 lakhs per annum during the three years ending 1898-99 and to provide for the amounts noted below in the following four years:—

* Year.	Rupees in thousands.
1899-1900	55,09
1900-01	1,59,61
1901-02	53,41
1902-03	42,32

Year.	Amount in thousands of rupees.
1899-1900	38,42
1900-01	95,45
1901-02	40,85
1902-03	39,17

In the absence of any special arrangement, such a strain would have seriously crippled Provincial finances, even with the present resources under the Provincial Settlement as recently revised. It is true that recent experience points in the direction of famine expenditure not being required in future famines on the scale which was necessary at the end of the last century and the beginning of this; but it is equally true that in that recent experience there was nothing comparable to the calamity of 1899-1900 either in intensity or in the immensity of the area over which that intense famine extended. It would be at present unsafe to assume that this Presidency will not, at any future time, be visited by a calamity such as that of 1900 and be forced to an expenditure such as the 6¾ crores of rupees which were spent in the years 1899 to 1903. If such a time came, it would be impossible to meet the situation without some special arrangement for the apportionment of famine expenditure between Imperial and Provincial revenues.

6. In connection with the proposals now made by the Government of India, the Governor in Council would lay stress on the following points:—

(a) in considering any scheme relating to the distribution of famine expenditure, it is essential to take account of the indirect expenditure as well as the direct. In a cycle of bad years, the indirect expenditure amounts to 19 per cent. of the whole, while in a series of years with only small famines it reaches a proportion of 38 per cent. of the total. It must be borne in mind that Provincial bears by far the greater share of this indirect expenditure, viz., 78 per cent. of it in the bad cycle and 91 per cent. in the moderate series. The share which Provincial should take of direct expenditure must have regard to the fact of its resources being burdened far more heavily than Imperial by indirect charges;

(b) in famine years the loss of revenue by suspensions and remissions of land revenue tells more severely on Provincial than on Imperial finances. For the Provincial share of the land revenue bears a greater proportion to the Provincial income than the Imperial share of that revenue bears to Imperial receipt; and while it is improbable that Imperial would suffer at the same time from a famine-reduced land revenue in all the provinces at once, a famine-stricken single province receives no support to its revenues from the fact that other provinces are free from famine;

(c) in any scheme there must be provision for Imperial to come to the relief of Provincial finances in case of any overwhelming calamity such as would, under the ordinary conditions of the scheme, leave Provincial with balances reduced below the minimum prescribed as necessary to enable it to carry on its administration.

7. In the light of the remarks made in the foregoing paragraphs, the Governor in Council is unwilling to accept the revised credit system, the working of which is described in paragraph 12 of the letter under reply. While it would to some extent lighten the burden of direct famine expenditure on Provincial finances in the bad cycle, it would very materially increase it in the moderate series. It is complicated to calculate and does not pay sufficient regard to the three considerations mentioned in the preceding paragraph. The Governor in Council is willing to accept the 3 to 1 division scheme proposed in paragraph 15 of the letter from the Government of India, subject to the following two conditions, viz:—

(1) that the existing rule under which all expenditure incurred during the period of observation and test, though direct, is to be debited to Provincial heads (and not to "33, Famine Relief") if famine is not subsequently declared shall be abolished, and all direct famine expenditure shall be debited to 33, Famine Relief whether incurred during the period of observation and test and whether famine is subsequently declared or not; and

(2) that where famine expenditure is, owing to the intensity and extent of the famine, so great that the Provincial balances are under the ordinary distribution of expenditure reduced below the working minimum, the proportion 3-4ths Imperial and 1-4th Provincial shall be for the time altered to such proportion (e.g., 4-5ths and 1-5th, 6-7ths and 1-7th, 7-8ths and 1-8th) as shall suffice to enable Provincial finances, due regard being had to its indirect expenditure, to maintain a working balance.

Accompaniments to the letter from the Government of Bombay, Financial Department, to the Government of India, Finance Department, No. 2114, dated 31st May 1915.

No. 598-II-3-5-1915, dated Nagpur, the 16th March 1916.

From—The HON'BLE MR. J. T. MARTEN, I. C. S., Second Secretary to the Chief Commissioner, Central Provinces (Finance Department),

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Finance Department.

I am directed to refer to the Hon'ble Mr. Brunyate's letter No. 2044-F., dated the 31st December 1914, dealing with the system of apportionment of famine relief expenditure between Imperial and Provincial Funds. The Government of India ask for the opinion of this Administration on certain proposals made in that letter with a view to modifying the existing Famine Insurance Scheme, or to replacing it by a simple financial adjustment which would have the effect of bringing what is considered to be the Provincial share of direct famine expenditure within the scope of the Provincial Settlement.

2. The Chief Commissioner concurs in the criticisms on the present scheme that it is not only complex and technical but also artificial in that the adjustment of the assignments between Provincial and Imperial Revenues is largely a paper adjustment. I am, however, to point out that the artificiality of the present scheme arises from the fact, admitted by the Government of India, that no allowance has been made for the liability of a province to famine in the calculation of the share of revenue to be assigned to it under its Provincial Settlement. Had such an allowance for direct famine expenditure been made at the revision of the Provincial Settlement, the necessary financial adjustment would presumably have taken the form either of a large Provincial share of some divided head of revenue or of an addition to the fixed assignment from Imperial to Provincial. It was the absence of any such provision in the Provincial Settlement for direct famine expenditure which justified the additional paper assignment from Imperial Funds which was necessary to render the Famine Insurance Scheme possible, and the formal nature of the scheme should not be allowed to obscure the fact that it was really intended to represent the extent to which Provincial finances could ordinarily be called upon to contribute towards the direct expenditure on famine relief.

3. As regards the alternative modifications proposed in your letter under reply I am to say that the scheme outlined in paragraphs 7 to 13 of your letter appears to the Chief Commissioner to posses in an even greater degree than the present scheme the disadvantages of complexity and artificiality. As, however, this proposal does not appear to be put forward with any great favour by the Government of India ; it is unnecessary for the Chief Commissioner to discuss it any length. The other scheme which is explained in paragraphs 14 to 16 of your letter under reply is, in the Chief Commissioner's opinion, superior in every way to either of the two other schemes, and he is prepared to accept it, subject, however, to the limitations which will be set forth in the succeeding paragraphs of this letter.

4. The objection which the Chief Commissioner wishes to urge against any of these schemes for the adjustment of famine expenditure is that they do not fit in with the policy in regard to famine relief which has been adopted in these Provinces. The financial principles underlying the Famine Insurance Schemes have reference only to the policy of famine relief laid down in the Famine Code. That policy assumes that in all, except the slightest and most local scarcities, the rules of the Famine Code will be brought into force, and expenditure on relief will be carried out in accordance with them. In the Central Provinces, however, a most noteworthy departure has been made from this system of relief. The new policy has been fully explained to the Government of India in the Revenue and Agriculture Department (this Administration's letter No. 1342, dated the 21st September 1911), but it seems desirable that it should again be briefly described, as otherwise the arguments to be now set forth in regard to the financial arrangements for the adjustment of famine relief expenditure may be misunderstood. Briefly stated, the new policy has been to defer as long as possible the application of the rules of the Famine Code ; the actual effect of it has been to apply those rules only in respect of gratuitous relief and to leave the relief of the able-bodied to be effected through an expansion of the ordinary programme of public works. The Chief Commissioner does not disguise from himself the possibility that, in a severe and wide spread calamity, recourse might have to be had to the provisions of the regular Famine Code and that the new system of relief might have to be set aside His belief is, however, that in such a case the new system would be worked for some time after the commencement of distress. And he is further of opinion that the new system, in the altered economic conditions of the Province—due to the extension of irrigation and of the mining industry—, will be found capable of meeting fairly severe and wide-spread failures of crops and that it may be counted on as the normal policy of famine relief in these Provinces.

5. Since the adoption of the new policy there have been two periods of scarcity in the Provinces, viz., the period between 1907 and 1909, and the year 1913-14.

The total cost debited against the Provincial Famine Insurance allottment in the earlier of these two periods, in which distress was severe and extended to a considerable portion of the Province, was Rs. 12,87,000, but, as the Government of India are aware, this represents a comparatively small proportion of the actual expenditure due to famine. In this connection I am to invite a reference to this Administration's letter No. 614, dated the 11th March 1909, and to paragraph 5 of this Administration's Resolution No. 1242, dated the 2nd August 1911 (a copy of which was forwarded to the Government of India in the Finance Department), in which an estimate was given of the actual cost of the scarcity in the period now under consideration, in respect of loss of revenue and of increased expenditure directly due to famine. The actual excess expenditure directly due to famine was 22 lakhs in addition to the expenditure of funds in the budget diverted from ordinary works to works especially designed to relieve famine.

The scarcity of 1913-14 was in all respects a much less serious and less widespread calamity. It was dealt with on the same general lines as in 1907-08, with the result that the debit to Famine Relief (Imperial) between the 1st October 1913 and the 30th September 1914 was Rs. 1,27,000, while the actual additional charge on Provincial Funds due to famine amounted, apart from loss of revenue, to 6½ lakhs.

It will thus be seen that since the introduction of the Provincial Famine Insurance Scheme the economic circumstances of the Provinces have in no case placed such a strain upon the working of the scheme as to exhibit its operations under conditions of great stress, but at the same time sufficient experience has been gained to demonstrate the difficulties of applying this scheme to the special conditions under which famine relief is administered in these Provinces. Summing up the figures given above the following results may be stated for the two famine periods :—

(Rupees in lakhs)

Year.		Famine Expenditure	Charged to— Provincial.	Imperial
1907—09 ...	...	... 35·00	22·00	13·00
1913—14 ...	...	... 7·75	6·50	1·25
	Total	... 42·75	28·50	14·25

Thus the so-called insurance scheme devised expressly to protect Provincial finances in time of famine has actually operated in these Provinces in such a manner as to result in two-thirds of the direct famine expenditure, as well as the whole of the indirect expenditure, being thrown upon the Provincial exchequer.

6. In Mr. King's letter No. 1342, dated the 21st September 1911, to the Revenue and Agriculture Department, Sir Reginald Craddock showed clearly that while the system of famine relief which was therein described had the merits of economy and of the avoidance of the general demoralization of the people incidental to famine relief under the Famine Code Rules, it resulted, under the present financial arrangements, in throwing a disproportionately heavy burden upon Provincial Funds, and he claimed that so much of the additional expenditure outside the ordinary provisions of the budget as was directly due to famine relief was a fair charge against the head of "33, Famine Relief", under which head alone the benefits of the Famine Insurance could be utilized. In this connection the Chief Commissioner desires to emphasize the fact that under Sir Reginald Craddock's scheme, the special "Scarcity" works, which were to be charged to "33, Famine Relief", were only those which could not be financed from the budget. Although the execution of a particular work might not have been provided for in the budget, yet if funds could be found for it by diversion of money provided for some other work or works, it would not be regarded as a special "Scarcity" work, and would not be charged to "Famine Relief". The arguments put forward by this Administration were not accepted by the Government of India, who, in their (Revenue and Agriculture Department) letter No. 970, dated the 29th July 1913, indicated that they were not prepared to trust to the decision of the Local Administration as to whether an extension of works was justified by the agricultural and economic conditions, and that the only modification of the previous financial arrangements which they were prepared to admit was the offer, as a matter of grace, of some assistance from the Famine Insurance Grant, should Provincial funds and balances be absolutely unable to meet the enhanced expenditure.

7. The Chief Commissioner thinks that the Government of India must admit that this failure to adjust the financial relations between the Imperial and Provincial Governments to suit the more modern economic method of famine administration is unsatisfactory. Provincial Funds certainly cannot continue to bear the burden of famine expenditure of which the Provincial Famine Insurance Scheme was expressly designed to relieve them, and it will be a matter for serious consideration, on the outbreak of another famine, whether the admitted advantages of the Central Provinces system of famine administration must not be sacrificed. It is indeed quite clear that, under any one of the systems of famine insurance dealt with in the Government of India's letter under consideration, it is strongly in the interests of the Provinces from the strictly financial point of view to throw over all thought of economic methods of famine administration and to begin to operate on "33, Famine Relief" by the declaration of famine at an early stage. Sir Benjamin Robertson thinks, however, that the Government of India have perhaps under-rated the means which they will always have of satisfying themselves that the expansion of ordinary works has not been premature or extravagant. The Government of India's own orders require that as soon as agricultural prospects become serious, a special report on the state of affairs shall be submitted to them. They are themselves in a position to observe the course of prices. And, if certain proposals, which the Chief Commissioner is submitting to the Government of India in the Revenue and Agriculture Department as to the formal declaration of "Scarcity" and which will presently be alluded to, are accepted, the Government of India, on such declaration, will receive a special weekly famine telegram and detailed monthly reports and statements. The Government of India will thus always be kept fully informed of the actual conditions, and there can be no apprehension that the Local Administration may uudertake an expensive and extravagant programme of public works without the knowledge of the Government of India, or in circumstances which they might deem insufficient to justify such measures.

8. The proposals mentioned in the last paragraph as to the declaration of scarcity are contained in this Administration's letter No. 548—X-10-1, dated the 16th March 1916, to the Government of India in the Department of Revenue and Agriculture. The suggestion is made that when the stage has been reached at which the helpless and incapable can no longer depend on private charity, and at which the provision of employment on works has to be supplemented by the general distribution of gratuitous relief in a particular area, "Scarcity" should be declared in such area. And it is pointed out that this step—tending as it does to a certain amount of demoralization—will not be undertaken by the Local Administration without the fullest justification. When scarcity has been declared, it is proposed that works specially undertaken for the relief of distress—although they will still be conducted on ordinary contract methods—should be classed as Scarcity works, if they cannot be met, either under the provision for works, or by re-appropriation, from the budget of the year then current.

9. The Chief Commissioner trusts that the Government of India will accept the arrangement proposed. If this is done, it will, he considers, enable the Government of India so far to modify the orders passed in 1913 as to agree to expenditure on scarcity works as thus defined being debited against the head "33, Famine Relief". Up to the declaration of scarcity, all works undertaken, whether financed from funds in the budget or from Provincial balances will be a charge against the Provincial revenues. The former will, after the declaration of scarcity, still continue a Provincial charge: only the latter will come under the head "Famine Relief". The proposal differs from that put forward by Sir Reginald Craddock in that it postpones the debiting of expenditure on this second class of works to "Famine Relief" until scarcity has been declared. And as already remarked in paragraph 7 of this letter, the Government of India will have the fullest information as to the conditions which have led to the declaration of scarcity and to the circumstances of the distress in the reports with which they will be furnished

10. Should the Government of India be prepared to agree to the modification on these lines of their orders of 1913 and to the admission under a proper system of intelligence of the right of the Local Administration to debit the cost of the extension as a measure of famine relief, of ordinary works to "33, Famine Relief", the Chief Commissioner as stated above is prepared to accept the system proposed in paragraph 15 of the Government of India's letter under reply in place of the present somewhat complicated and obscure arrangement. This system has the effect of introducing a divided head on the expenditure side without any compensation by way of assignment or larger increased share of revenue on the receipt side, notwithstanding that expenditure on famine relief was admittedly not provided for in the Provincial Settlement. But the advantage of having a definite and settled financial arrangement of a fairly simple nature, such as will ensure the possibility of gauging, with some approach to accuracy, the extent of the burden which Provincial resources are likely to be called upon to bear in any particular scarcity or famine, has considerable compensating value.

11. In asking the Government of India to accept the suggestion above put forward as to the debit of Scarcity works as now proposed to be defined in the Code to the head "33, Famine Relief", the Chief Commissioner would again emphasise the fact that relief of distress in the manner adopted in the Central Provinces is both economical and practical; its advantages have been tested in two recent famines, and it has been acknowledged by the Government of India as fulfilling the claims that have been made in its favour. But it throws a severe burden on Provincial finances unless this acknowledgment be accompanied by more favourable treatment in the matter of debiting its cost to the head "Famine Relief". And the proposals now put forward are intended to be a fair means of enabling such treatment to be introduced, and of relieving Provincial finances of the disproportionate share which they have recently borne in meeting famine conditions in these Provinces.

ACCOUNTS FINANCE.
Provincial Finance.

To

THE RIGHT HONOURABLE AUSTEN CHAMBERLAIN,

His Majesty's Secretary of State for India.

Delhi, the 23rd December 1916.

SIR,

We have been considering the desirability of modifying the arrangements sanctioned in Lord Morley's despatch No. 5-Financial, dated the 11th January 1907, for the apportionment of expenditure on famine relief between the Imperial and Provincial Governments.

2. In 1914, in response to a Resolution moved by the late Rai Sri Ram Bahadur in the Imperial Legislative Council on the 7th March of that year, we undertook to consider whether the provincial allotments under the existing scheme required revision. Our examination of the question was primarily directed to the possibility of a rectification of minor inequalities as between different provinces in the light of the experience obtained since the present scheme was introduced. We were, however, led on to the conclusion that the existing arrangements are unduly complicated and that it would be possible to place the question of incidence on a much simpler basis without prejudice to the essential objects in view, viz., that the provinces should depend on Imperial assistance for the greater portion of the special expenditure entailed by relief measures, but that they should at the same time retain a substantial measure of responsibility in the interests of the economical administration of relief.

3. After careful consideration of the question, we placed two alternative proposals before the Local Governments concerned in our Finance Department letter No. 2044-F., dated the 31st December 1914, a copy of which we enclose. Briefly, the object of the first proposal there elaborated was to safeguard the interests of a province suffering from more than one famine within a short interval. The present system relies upon the gradual building up of famine credits and therefore does not provide adequately for the case of a province the amount at whose credit has been exhausted by famine expenditure and which is attacked by another famine before there has been time to build up a substantial credit. It was suggested that this difficulty might be met by providing that the credits up to which expenditure will be borne by Imperial revenues should revive after each famine. This solution, however, would introduce a fresh complication owing to the necessity for calculating the expenditure with reference to the "famine year" (from October to September) as distinguished from the official year. On the whole, therefore, it seemed to us that it would be preferable to abandon the present system altogether and to treat the head "33—Famine Relief" as an ordinary divided head, the Imperial share being taken uniformly at $\frac{3}{4}$ and the Provincial at $\frac{1}{4}$. This particular distribution was suggested as it represents approximately the assistance which Imperial revenues actually give in the long run towards famine expenditure under existing arrangements. This alternative proposal was accordingly commended to the consideration of Local Governments, and its advantages were indicated in paragraph 16 of the Finance Department letter.

4. It will be seen from the replies received, copies of which are enclosed, that the Local Governments are generally in favour of this simpler method of dividing famine expenditure in the fixed proportion of three-fourths Imperial and one-fourth Provincial. Some provinces have, however, attached certain qualifications to their acceptance of our proposal and these we examine below :—

The Government of the United Provinces asks that the provincial liability in any one financial year should be limited to a maximum of R 25 lakhs, while the Government of Bombay suggest that, when provincial balances are, under the proposed distribution of famine expenditure, reduced below a working minimum, the shares of the expenditure to be borne by Imperial and Provincial revenues should, for the time being, be altered to such a proportion as will suffice to enable Provincial Governments to maintain a working balance. These reservations are doubtless made with a view to safeguarding the provincial finances from a complete collapse. The present system, however, contemplates that the incidence of famine expenditure will be the subject of special arrangements when the provincial balance has been reduced below half the prescribed minimum. It is our intention under the scheme now proposed to maintain the same safeguard and we do not think that we should go further in accelerating the stage at which special Imperial assistance will commence, or in defining the form which it should take. The object of our proposals is not to do away with the underlying principles of the 1906-07 scheme as regards the distribution of famine expenditure between Imperial and Provincial, but merely to substitute a more convenient working method. Thus, as already explained, the proportion of three-fourths and one-fourth was suggested as representing roughly the assistance actually given under existing arrangements. The suggestion made by the Government of Bombay would go beyond the amendment of method we have in view by introducing a fresh principle to the advantage of the provinces. There would, moreover, be considerable practical difficulties in working a sliding scale of the character suggested by the Local Government in paragraph 7 (2) of their letter No. 2144, dated the 31st May 1915. Again, the imposition of a maximum annual limit for provincial liability, such as that proposed by the Government of the United Provinces, has the disadvantage that a larger share of the expenditure would fall on Imperial revenues in the case of a severe famine confined in its effects mainly to a single financial year than in the case of one which extends more or less equally over two financial years. This suggestion also involves a reversion to the unsatisfactory arrangement of fixing comparative provincial standards of expenditure which are liable to require revision with reference to changing conditions and also to be made the subject of invidious criticism.

We are not prepared therefore to accept these suggestions.

The other stipulation made by the United Provinces Government, viz., that the proposed arrangements should not involve any other modification of the provincial settlement does not call for comment, as no such modification is entailed.

5. A further reservation made by the Government of Bombay relates to the treatment of expenditure incurred during the period of observation and test when famine is not actually declared. Such expenditure is at present charged as provincial, under the head "45—Civil Works" or "32—Miscellaneous", and we are ready to concede that this should in future be charged to "33—Famine Relief." The present arrangement is not altogether logical since the nature of the expenditure is the same whether famine is declared or not, and moreover it offers an inducement to the premature declaration of scarcity or famine. We recognise also that it is desirable to encourage Local Governments to take prophylactic measures, which they might be led to delay too long if they were uncertain whether they would have to bear the whole cost or not. We may also observe that owing to the recent recognition of "scarcity" as a distinct stage of distress between "observation and test" and "famine", and the debit to the head "33—Famine Relief" of expenditure incurred during the period of scarcity, the concession is probably of less importance than was formerly the case.

6. Very similar considerations apply to a recommendation made by the Chief Commissioner, Central Provinces. In the despatch from Lord Hardinge's Government, No. 23 (Revenue and Agriculture), dated the 7th August 1913, reference was made to a special system of relief in force in the Central Provinces, the essence of which is that, before famine is declared, the programme of ordinary works is expanded so as to provide employment freely and thus to obviate as far as possible the necessity for resorting to ordinary famine relief works. As just stated, it has recently been decided to recognise "scarcity" for the purpose of the famine codes as a definite stage of distress intermediate between "observation and test" and "famine", and in the Central Provinces scarcity will ordinarily be declared in a district or area as soon as the general distribution of gratuitous relief in such district or area becomes necessary. The Chief Commissioner proposes that, when this has been done, works specially undertaken for the relief of distress should be classed as "scarcity works" if their cost cannot be met either from the budget provision for works or by reappropriation, the cost of these scarcity works being charged to the head "33—Famine Relief".

We are of opinion that the Central Provinces system has considerable advantages from the point of view of economy in famine finance. There is also much force in the contention of the Chief Commissioner that this special scheme of relief at present throws on provincial revenues expenditure which is really incurred on famine relief and which would be classed as such elsewhere. The recognition of scarcity as a definite stage of distress has the effect of postponing the stage at which the expenditure on the special works will be charged as famine expenditure and we recognise that the reports which the local Administration is required to send to the Government of India under the famine code, put them in a position to satisfy themselves that "scarcity works" have not been undertaken either too early or on an extravagant scale. We, therefore, endorse the Chief Commissioner's recommendation that expenditure on scarcity works should be debited to the head "famine relief" in so far as it cannot be met directly or by reappropriation from the civil works budget provision for the year. And when the budget for any year has to be framed with reference to the existence of famine or quasi-famine conditions, the Local Administration will be required, in view of the special system of relief obtaining in the province, to place the grant under the head "45—Civil Works" at a figure not less than that for the last normal year.

7. It was decided in 1910 (vide the correspondence noted in the margin) that all direct famine relief outlay incurred in the non-jurisdictional estates in Bombay should be borne by Government and the Local Government were instructed to consider the question of levying a famine cess in the areas referred to in order to defray the expenditure. For the reasons stated in their letter No. 2939, dated 17th May 1915 (a copy of which is enclosed), the Government of Bombay came to the conclusion that it is not feasible to levy a famine cess, and asked that the expenditure on relief in the estates in question may be accepted as an entirely Imperial liability. We accept the opinion of the Local Government that the question of a cess should be dropped, but consider that the expenditure on relief in the areas referred to should, like other famine expenditure, be divided between Imperial and Provincial revenues in the proportion of ¾ and ¼.

Despatch from Lord Minto's Government, No. 47, dated 24th February 1910, and Lord Morley's despatch No. 40-Pol., dated 13th May 1910.

8. The Government of the Punjab was not at first inclined to favour the change proposed. The question has, however, subsequently been discussed informally with His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor, and he has now agreed to fall in with the other provinces in accepting a uniform division of famine expenditure on the lines suggested.

9. It is not usual to make provision for famine expenditure in provincial settlements and the Government of Bihar and Orissa are not correct in assuming that allowance will be made for the provincial liability involved by our proposals when the present temporary settlement with that province is made permanent. Such a course would obviously result in making the whole expenditure on famine in that province practically Imperial.

10. For the reasons summarised in paragraph 16 of our letter of the 31st December 1914, we consider that the scheme now proposed has substantial advantages over the arrangements at present in force, and we now request your sanction to its introduction with effect from the 1st of April 1917. The balances at the credit of Provincial Governments in the pro forma account now maintained will of course be written off with effect from that date. The change will apply to all provinces, including Burma and Assam which owing to their practical immunity from famine were excluded from the existing scheme. If you find it possible to communicate your approval by telegraph by the middle of January next, we will introduce the change in the budget estimates for 1917-18: otherwise we propose to give effect to it in the revised estimates and actuals of that year.

INDIA OFFICE, LONDON,

Financial.

No. 9.

To His Excellency the Right Honourable the Governor General of India in Council.

MY LORD,

Apportionment of expenditure on famine relief between Imperial and Provincial revenues.

I have considered in Council Your Financial Letter No. 307, dated 23rd December 1916, in which you submit proposals for the apportionment of expenditure on famine relief between the Imperial and Provincial Governments.

2. The scheme now in force is that approved in Lord Morley's Despatch No. 5 of the 11th January 1907. The ruling principle of that scheme was to enable each local Government of a Province liable to famine to build up gradually a reserve of credit with the Imperial Government on which it would be at liberty to draw when it was necessary to incur expenditure or famine relief ; but, if the expenditure incurred exceeded the maximum credit, the excess was to be shared equally between the Imperial and the local Governments. If the balances of the local Government were so depleted as to fall below one-half of the prescribed minimum, further assistance was to be given from Imperial revenues according to the circumstances of the occasion.

3. You have now come to the conclusion that this scheme is unduly complicated and that it would be possible to place the question of incidence on a much simpler basis without prejudice to the essential objects in view. You therefore propose to treat the expenditure, head "33, Famine relief ", as an ordinary divided head, the Imperial share, being three-fourths, and the provincial share one-fourth. The local Governments have accepted the proposal subject to certain provisos. The first proviso is that provincial balances shall be safeguarded from a complete collapse ; and, to meet this you have expressed to me, and will no doubt express to local Governments and Administrations, your intention to maintain the same safeguard as under the present system, viz., that when a provincial balance has been so depleted as to fall below half the prescribed minimum, assistance shall be given from Imperial revenues. The second proviso is that the definition of famine expenditure shall be widened. In paragraphs 5 and 6 of your Letter you agree that expenditure incurred both under "Scarcity" and during the period of observation and test shall be debited to the head "33, Famine Relief."

4. I agree that the adoption of your proposals will simplify the accounts and at the same time ensure an equitable distribution of the expenditure. I therefore sanction your proposals.

I have the honour to be,

MY LORD,

Your Lordship's most obedient, humble Servant,

(Signed) AUSTEN CHAMBERLAIN.

4. The rainfall of the week was 20 per cent or more in defect in the Bay Islands, Lower Burma, Bengal, Bihar, Kashmir, the North West Frontier Province, Baluchistan and Rajputana. It was within 20 per cent of the normal in Orissa, the Central Provinces West, the Konkan and Mysore, and was 20 per cent or more in excess in all the remaining divisions with the exception of Sind where no rain usually falls at this time of the year.

The rainfall from the 4th May to date differs from the normal by less than 20 per cent in Upper Burma, Assam, Orissa, the Konkan, the Bombay Deccan, Malabar and Madras Southeast, and is 20 per cent or more in defect in the Bay Islands, Lower Burma, Bengal, Kashmir, the North-West Frontier Province and Mysore. It is 20 per cent or more in excess in the remainder of the country.

Jammu.—Slight rain fell during the week. Prices are fluctuating. Wheat sells from 8 to 13 and maize from 12 to 25 seers per rupee. The condition of standing crops is average. Cattle disease of mild type prevails in the Basohli tahsil. Fodder is insufficient in certain places.

Kashmir.—Report not received.

Rajputana.—The rainfall during the week was general, varying from 50 cents in Merwara to 2 inches 72 cents in Kotah. The weather was occasionally cloudy. Land is being prepared for autumn crops and sowings continue. Agricultural stock is healthy, though some cattle disease prevails in Dungarpur, Banswara and Kotah. Water and fodder are ample. Prices show a marked fall in Dungarpur, Jhalawar, Kishengarh, Tonk and Karauli and slight rise in Kotah, Jaipur, Bharatpur and Merwara and are stationary elsewhere.

Central India.—The rainfall during the week was general in Gwalior and Bhopal and partial elsewhere. It was insufficient in Bhopal and unnecessary in Baghelkhand. Spring crops are being threshed in Bhopal, Rewa and the Nagod State in the Baghelkhand Agency. Land is being prepared for autumn crops almost everywhere. Agricultural stock is generally in good condition. The fodder supply is sufficient. Prices are high in Bhopal, have fallen slightly in Gwalior and are steady elsewhere.

Central Provinces.—The weather continues to be hot and occasionally cloudy. Seventeen districts received light to moderate rain, nowhere exceeding 2¼ inches. Threshing and winnowing are approaching completion everywhere. Preparation of lands for the ensuing season's crops continues. The supply of fodder and water is adequate. Variations in prices are unimportant but indicate an upward tendency.

Feudatory States.—Six States received light showers. Ploughing of fields is preceeding.

Bombay.—Good rain fell during the week throughout the Presidency. Lands are being prepared for autumn cultivation and sowing has commenced in the Konkan and the Karnatak. The fodder supply is adequate. Agricultural stock is sufficient. Cattle are in good condition. Drinking water is adequate. Water for irrigation is deficient in parts of Larkana, Thar and Parkar, Kaira and the Panch Mahals. Prices of food grains have risen slightly in parts of the Karnatak and are generally steady elsewhere.

Cattle are generally healthy. Water and fodder are available.

Coorg.—Rainfall 3 inches 65 cents. Ploughing for rice has commenced. Prices of food grains are slightly lower. The public health is fair. Cattle disease has subsided. Water and fodder for cattle are sufficient.

Madras.—The rainfall during the week was very heavy in Cochin, heavy in Banganapalle, Malabar, South Kanara and the Nilgiris, good in Bellary, Sandur, Cuddapah, South Arcot, Pudukkottai, Madura, Travancore and Central except Chittoor and fair or light elsewhere. Standing crops are in fair to good condition generally. Harvesting of paddy, sugarcane and dry crops is proceeding normally with outturn fair to normal generally. Sowings of paddy, sugarcane and dry crops are proceeding normally. The condition of cattle is generally good. The water-supply is insufficient in parts of Godavari, South Arcot, Madura, Ramnad, South Kanara, Central and Deccan except Kurnool and sufficient elsewhere. R. A. MANT,

Secretary to the Government of India.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

MEMORANDUM REGARDING THE PROBABLE AMOUNT OF MONSOON RAINFALL IN 1917.

Monsoon rainfall in India is affected by previous conditions over various parts of the earth. The recent data which appear to be of importance are :—

SOUTH AMERICA.

2. Argentine Republic. – Pressure was in excess by 1·2 mm. in March, in defect by 0·1 mm. in April and in excess by 3·5 mm. in May.

Chili.—Pressure at Santiago was in defect by 0·1 mm. in March, and in excess by 0·1 mm. in April and 1·4 mm. in May.

THE INDIAN OCEAN.

3. (a) Mauritius.—Pressure was in defect by ·025" in May.

(b) Zanzibar.—Rainfall in April was 16·49", the normal being 13·66" : in May it was 13·62", against a normal of 10·11". Winds were variable in the middle week of May, but practically normal on the mean of the month.

(c) Seychelles.—In May rainfall was 0·52" against a normal of 6·07"; winds were 4 miles an hour stronger than usual.

(d) Logs of vessels.—No information is available for the equatorial belt. Over the Arabian Sea there were no preliminary irruptions of the monsoon such as usually occur in May : the first advance occurred over the western half during the fourth week, at about the normal date, and gave rise to a severe storm. By June 1st monsoon conditions had appeared on the Malabar coast. The mail steamer from Aden this week experienced a strong monsoon between Socotra and the meridian of 63° E.

Over the Bay of Bengal there were two advances, one in the first week which resulted in a severe storm, and the second in the fourth week.

NORTH-EAST AFRICA.

4. The rainfall of Abyssinia in April and May is brought by monsoon winds from the Indian Ocean, and can be estimated from the amount of water in the Blue Nile. This was slightly above the average at the beginning of June. Pressure at Cairo was above normal at the end of May.

SNOWFALL.

5. (a) Over the area extending from Persia to the Indus the snowfall appears to have been much lighter than usual during the period November to May.

(b) The snowfall in the Kashmir hills was on the whole abnormally small in amount, and the quantity of snow lying there at the present time is considerably below the average.

(c) In the Punjab Himalayas the fall was scanty from November to February, but during the next three months weather was much more disturbed than usual and there were frequent local falls, some of them down to unusually low levels. In parts of Kulu snow is reported to have fallen as low as 6,000 feet on the 28th April. The existing accumulations are barely one-fourth of the normal in the Simla hills, and materially greater than usual on the ranges in Kulu.

(d) In the Kumaon hills the snowfall was much below the average from November to February, and normal or in excess during the succeeding three months. The accumulations on May 25th were appreciably deeper than usual on most of the passes.

(e) Snowfall was heavier and lay longer than usual in the eastern and central sections of the North-East Frontier Tract, and was about the average in the western section.

On the whole it may be said that snowfall has been much below the normal in the highlands to the west of the Indus as well as in Kashmir, and heavier than usual in parts of the Himalayas. The local excess in the Punjab and the United Provinces Himalayas was a result mainly of the frequent falls from March to May, comparatively little snowfall having occurred in the earlier part of the winter.

CEYLON.

6. The May rainfall in the southern portion of the island, as represented by the mean of Galle, Kalutara and Ratnapura, was 7·7 inches, the average being 14·7 inches.

INDIA.

7. In April weather was very wet and cold in the Punjab, Rajputana, the United Provinces and Central India; and in May these conditions occurred to an unprecedented degree. Rainfall was over double the average in the Punjab, the United Provinces, and Hyderabad, over three times in the Central Provinces and over seven times in Rajputana and Central India. Temperature was in defect by 7° in the Punjab and United Provinces, 11° in Rajputana, 9° in Central India and the Central Provinces, and 6° in Hyderabad.

UPPER AIR.

8. Mr. Field has found that during the cooler half year in India the winds increase rapidly with height and frequently reach 100 miles an hour at a height of about 7 miles; in the hotter half year the increase is slight.

The diminution in velocity of the upper winds has occurred this year earlier than in any of the past three years at Khojak, Simla and Agra; and a Bangalore earlier than in 1916.

INFERENCES FROM THE DATA.

9. An examination of past records shows that for the present purpose India may with advantage be divided into four parts. The rainfall of the extreme south of the peninsula tends to vary in the direction opposite to that of India as a whole, and that of lower Burma is largely independent of it. We may separate off Upper Burma, Assam, Bengal, Bihar and Chota Nagpur, as depending almost entirely on the Bay current. Then the rest of India will depend partly or entirely on the Arabian Sea current; it consists of the United Provinces, the Punjab, the North-West Frontier Province, Sind, Rajputana, Bombay, Central India, the Central Provinces, Hyderabad, Mysore, the North Madras Coast and Orissa. This area, forming the greater part of the country, may be called 'India main' and is fairly homogeneous in its dependence on external meteorological factors.

10. Considering 'India main', one of the chief factors affecting its rainfall is pressure in South America during April and May. This is favourable when high and this year is distinctly above the normal. It tends to vary in the opposite direction to pressure at Mauritius, which is favourable when low in May, as it is this year. The rainfall at Zanzibar in April and May should be
